Associated Press Leased-wire Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—One of the most important cases of the year was taken up in the United States Supreme Court today. It involves the validity of title of the Southern Pacific Company to the water-front of Oakland, Cal. The grant was originally made in 1852 to the town of Oakland, then a mere hamlet, of a large of Oakland, then a mere hamlet, of a large tract of land extending from high-water mark to the ship-channel, to enable the town, which was incorporated in the same act, to create a harbor and construct wharves. This grant was conveyed to Horace W. Carpentier by the trustees of the town, on his agreement to perform certain conditions required of the town by the granting act of the Legislature.

Controversies arose between Carpentier and the authorities of Oakland after its incorporation as a city in 1884. incorporation as a city in 1864. The claims were all adjusted in 1868, under the authority which the Legislature conferred authority which the Legislature conferred on the City Council and Mayor for the purpose. From Carpentier the title now attacked by the State of California was transferred to the railroad company. The present suit is brought to quiet title.

The State of California is represented by Atty.-Gen. Hart, and with him are the assistant counsel for the city of Oakland and also John S. Miller of Chicago, who was counsel for that city in the famous lake-front cate in which he took from tha Illinois Central its supposed water right to submerged lands constituting the waterfront of Chicago on Lake Michigan. On the side of the railroad are William Stewthe side of the railroad are William Stewart, Senator from Nevada; J. Hubley Ashton of Washington; J. K. Cowan and Hugh L. Bond, Jr., of Baltimore, and Har-

Hugh L. Bond, Jr., of Battimore, and Harvey D. Bunn of San Francisco.

The case will be opened by Atty-Gen.
Hart of California, who will contend that, by the principles laid down in the Chicago lake-front case, the State of California had not the power to grant the submerged lands in the Bay of San Francisco, which are the subject of contention. The most interesting feature of the case is the proressed willingness of both sides to be governed by the law in the lake-front case, the week. The property involved is said to be valued at $30,000,000. The case is brought originally in the Supreme Court, and has not been heard in a lower court.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19 .- In answer to to the Senate the correspondence between the Navy Department and Admiral Walker. relative to his mission to Hawaii last summer. The correspondence makes a volume of considerable size, covering about sixty type-written pages, and while much of it is purely formal, some chapters are of great interest. It begins on March 23 detailing the admiral from duty as presi-dent of the inspection Board and order-fug him to Honolulu to relieve Admiral station, and closes with a notice from the 24. announcing his relinquishment of that days after the issue of the first formal order the admiral, while in Washington, received the following instructions from the Secretary, marked confidential:

HIS ORDERS

"Sir: The following instructions, which are to be considered strictly confidential, are issued for your guidance while in command of the United States naval forces on the Pacific station. The attitude and policy which the government of the United States has heretofore observed toward the people and government of the Hawaiian Islands are fully abown in the executive documents Nos. 47, 48, 65, 70, 76, 79 and 56, which have been mailed to you in care of the navy office. San Francisco. You will freely consult with the Moister of the United States at Haboulu poon all points which may arise in the general course of Hawaiian matters and you will give due weight to his knowledge and opinion upon the actual employment in any event of the military forces under your command and in deciding the course to be pursued by yourself in any matter not covered by are to be considered strictly confidential, by yourself in any matter not covered by specific instructions. Your purpose as commander of the naval forces of the United States will be the protection of the lives and property of American citizens. In case of any civil war in the islands, whether growing out of an attempt to restore the Queen, or an attempt to establish a permanent government, or out of any election, or rising from any cause whatever, you will extend no aid or sup-port, moral or physical, to any of the parties engaged therein, but you will keep steadily in view that it is your duty to protect the lives and property of all such citizens of the United States as shall not, thus forfeit their right in that regard to the protection of the American flag. An American citizen who, during a revolution or insurrection in a foreign country, participates in an attempt by force of arms to maintain or overthrow the existing gov-ernment, or who aids in setting on fool a revolution or insurrection in such a country, cannot claim, as matter of right of the government of the United States, protection against the consequences of such act. If you shall observe at any time any effort or attempt on the part of any foreign power to interfere in the political affairs of the islands, or if you shall perceive any circumstances pointing to such interferences, you will promptly report the same to this department. "Very respectfully yours, (Signed) "H. A. HERBERT, "Secretary of the Navy."

The next step in the correspondence on June 18 from the department to Admiral Walker, then at Honolulu, asking whether any survey of Pearl Harbor was being made by his order. Another telegram dated July 9 ordered him, upon the arrival of the Charleston at Honolulu, to turn over his orders to the commanding officer of that tessel and return without delay on the Philadelphia to Mare Island. On July 11 the admiral was directed by telegraph to Mare Island to turn over the command of the Pacific squadron to Admiral Beardslee and repair to Annapolis to assume the duties of Su periatendent of the Naval Academy. Another telegram of the date of July 20, diffected the admiral, then at Honolulu, to proceed at once to Mare Island without awaiting the arrival of the Charles CAUSES FOR APPREHENSION.

Admiral Walker began his reports to the department by a letter from Hono-lulu dated April 25, stating that he had assumed command of the station and tell-ing of the consequent formalities. On the 28th of the same month he wrote a long letter touching on the political sit-uation, giving his impressions. Premis-ing his remarks with the statement that the provisional government appeared to be firmly established and that life and be firmly established and that life and property were secure, the admiral says that there are two causes which give uneasiness, the uncertainty of the natives as to the ultimate restoration of the Queen and the possible disaffection of the Japanese. The registration had closed with but 1500 registrations in Honolulu; comparatively few natives had registered, their policy being one of abstention from political affairs under the existing circumstances.

they had been informed by their leaders They had been informed by their leaders that they would be punished if they did so and the Queen was restored and they were afraid to take the risk. They were being constantly told that she would be restored by the United States and foreign influence encouraged this behef and apprehension. Could they feel assured that the monarchy would not be restored by THE SOCIALISTS DEFY WILLIE.

outside interference, it is believed that this station is especially important because they would readily participate in formation of a new government. The sen-timent of loyalty to the monarchy and Queen, is, says the admiral, to a consid-erable extent of self-interest, of selfpreservation in the event of restoration.
"I am satisfied," said the admiral,
"that a clearly-formulated assurance from the United States of non-interference with political affairs of Hawaii and of disapproval of interference upon the part of any other nation would rest the situation clearly upon its local merits in the estimation of all classes without hope or fear of outside pressure, and would tend to speedy settlement of all troubles." Touching the Japanese, the admiral says that they number more than twenty thousand on the islands, and are in-clined to be turbulent. They stand together as a solid body; their leaders have political ambition, and propose to claim the right to vote. Many persons think them a possible source of future danger. They are brave, with military instinct and would fight if arcused or excited. The Portuguese also have political aspirations, but they are a law-abiding, de-sirable class of immigrants. The Chinese do not enter into politics to any ex-tent. As a rule, the English are Royalists, but many favor the provisional government and annexation.

The admiral complains of the lack o American naval strength, and the taking away of the Adams, leaving the flagship unsupported. He says that this country should have a force equal to any two other foreign forces combined, while the force is equaled by the English and excelled by the Japanese. Pending the arrival of the Charleston he recommends the sending of the Monterey to Honolulu, and closes by saying that, if the Marion touches there on her way to San Francisco, he shall detain her until after the elections, and longer if deemed advisable. WODEHOUSE AND NECKER ISLAND.

In his next letter, of the date of April 28, the admiral tells of the notice served by the British Minister. Wodehouse, upon President Dole of the intention of his government to use Necker Island as a cable station, and his request that nothing be said about it to the French, or to any one The President replied that he felt bound to inform the United States in view of the close relations with that government.

There is little of interest in the next three letters, beyond the statement that the hopes of the Royalists appear to be diminishing, but on May 30 the admiral tells of the celebrated race for the pos-session of Necker Island between the British warship Champion and the small steamer chartered by the Hawaiian gov-ernment. On June 21 the admiral sends a preliminary report upon Pearl Harbor stance which he says he has caused to be surveyed because of the interest he has long held in the subject, and in view of its great value to the United States. On June 23 Admiral Walker notes the receipt of the formal announcement of the action of our Senate toward Hawaii. He

"This definite announcement of a policy expressed in terms so clear and un-mistakable, has strengthened the hands mistakable, has strengthened the hands of the existing government, and will undoubtedly assist in the solution of certain difficult questions which attend the adoption of a constitution and the establishment of a permanent form of government. The Royalists are correspondingly depressed and discouraged. In my opinion," says he, "the peace is not in danger of being disturbed at present."

Many letters tell of the various er of being disturbed at present."

Many letters tell of the various for malities attending the organization of the republic. He says: "I hear of no objecrepublic. The says th Further on the admiral says that the republic has been firmly established; that there is no probability whatever of a counter revolution. If Liliuokalani surrenders her claim for a pension, matters will at once be settled. He considers that there is no longer any necessity for the there is no longer any necessity for the presence of a flag officer in Hawaii, but that a ship should be kept there and that Hawaii may be regarded as having reverted to its former status. the Secretary, set out in the telegrams with which the correspondence begins. It reads as follows:

Cham-pion had announced the receipt of orders to take certain deep-sea soundings in the neighborhood of the Hawaiian Islands, to aid in determining the feasibility of a cable route and had fixed the 6th as his day for departure. This work was to occupy the Champion nearly three weeks, before the expiration of which time her relief, the Hyacinth, was expected to

"Third-I felt that the departure of both the Philadelphia and the Champion (the only men-of-war at Honolulu) would be, under existing political conditions, not unfavorable to order and security in the islands. It would leave both parties en-tirely free and independent upon their own resources without any support, nominal or actual from an outside source

"Fourth—In my opinion the republic has ample strength to maintain itself and preserve peace and would suppress a riot but as long as foreign vessels lay in the harbor of Honolulu ready at a moment's notice in the event of disturbances, and property it was open to the enemies of the government to say that tranquility was maintained only by the presence of these ships. I found leading members of the government and others strongly of opinion and expressing satisfaction "Fifth-But as soon as it was known that the Philadelphia was to leave on the 8th a movement was set on foot among the English residents to retain the Champion and the British Minister, Maj. Wodehouse THE "NIGGER IN THE WOODPILE"

The essful revolution and the establishment diplomatic service, upon the eve of his retirement, was an evidence of failure which made him bitter and hostile. Although holding the position of British Minister and transacting diplomatic business with the government de facto, he had been a pronounced and partisan Royalist. It is currently believed that he had been in constant secret communication with the ex-Queen and entirely in the confidence of the Royalist leaders, and he had cer tesies and amenities due from one in his position. But for his impending retire-ment, matters would have probably come, some time ago, to an issue which would have resulted in his recall or dismissal.

Senator Perkins of California favored the building of the canal and pointed out the benefits which he thought would accepte benefits which he thought would accrue from its construction.

The time of the adjournment of Congress for the holidays will apparently depend entirely upon the House. A majority of the members of the Senate would prefer to have the recess begin after the close of the Webster-Starke ceremonies tomorrow, but the word received from the House is that such a proceeding will an-tagonize them and that the House will probably not consent to an adjournment until Saturday. In this event, it is prob-able that the Senate will adjourn from to-morrow to Saturday and that the few Senators left will adjourn over until after the holidays in accordance with any agree-ment that may be effected with the House.

FIFTY-THIRD CONGRESS.

SECOND SESSION

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—SENATE:— Immediately upon the convening of the Senate, today, the Vice-President laid before the Senate a letter from the Secretary of the Navy transmitting the report of Ad-miral Walker on the subject of Hawahi, which the Senate called for by resolution. The letter and report were referred without ussion to the Committee on Foreign the Committee on Public Lands a bill extending the act relating to abandoned military reservations, and it passed with

A resolution was introduced by Senator Allen of Nebraska, providing for the appointment of a select committee to inves-tigate political affairs in Alabama which, at his request, was laid on the table in order that he might submit some re-marks on it later. He also introduced a resolution for the appointment of a nmittee of five to investigate the Sen ate restaurant. He was about to speak on this matter when Senator Hale of Maine interposed an objection to its immediate consideration and it went over. Senator Bate of Tennessee called up the bill to establish a national military park at the battlefield of Shilob. The bill was passed.

A resolution offered yesterday by Senator Lodge, calling on the President correspondence in the Ezeta extradi case was passed without division. The Senate then took up the Nicaragua Canal Bill. Senator Turpie, who had the floor when the Senate adjourned yesterday, yielded to Senator Cullom.

It was remarkable, Mr. Cullom thought, that the world had submitted to such a long delay in constructing the canal, the building of which was regarded as a commercial necessity. He referred to the great expense to the citizens of Chicago in building the drainage and ship canal to the Mississippi and paid a tribute to that city for its enterprise. Would this government, he said, stop half way and leave our progressive people with only half the world open to their trade? Let them make a new vow and declare that for the purpose of American trade and commerce, "no pent-up Utica contracts our powers, but the whole boundless con-

Mr. Perkins of California secured the floor for thirty minutes to speak on the canal. He said:

"This Nicaraguan Canal will pay, as an "This Nicaraguan canal will pay, as an exhibition of American enterprise, of American skill and forethought, and of American nerve. It will pay because it must receive the commendation of the world, as it will show that there was a great question to be considered; great work to be done after the consideration as concluded, and that there was a great was concluded, and that there was a great people to carry it into effect."

Speaking of the benefits to California, he said: "The completion of this canal will bring the markets of Europe 10,000 miles nearer to California, and shorten the distance in the same ratio to our home markets, that stand ready with a price to take all the fruits, nuts and wine that we can bring them."

Before Mr. Perkins had concluded, the thirty minutes yielded by Mr. Turple expired, and the latter refused to extend it. Senator Turple made a critical analysis of the yarious provisions of the bill. When he temporarily took his seat, Mr. Morgan arose and intimated that he desired that Mr. Perkins, who, he said, had been interrupted by the Senator from Indiana (Mr. Turple) during his speech, be allowed to finish his remarks.

Mr. Turple, however, declared that he had not yielded the floor, and the chair so ruled. Mr. Turpie explained that he had not interrupted the Senator from California. Just before concluding his speech, and. Turple offered an amendment in the nature of a substitute to the pending bill providing for the appointment of a board of three engineers to make a survey and estimate the cost of the construction of the canal before any bonds are guaran-teed, and this, he declared, was as far as Congress ought to go this session.

Mr. Perkins then finished his speand at its conclusion Senator Morgan gave motice that he would reply to the re-marks of the Senator from Indiana. Then, after a short executive session, the HOUSE—As soon as the regular routine had been disposed of, today, on motion of Mr. Springer, the House went into executive session, and the debate on the Currency bill was resumed. Mr. Johnson of Indiana, one of the members of the minority of the Banking and Currency Committee, opened with a vigorous speech in opposition to the Carlisle bill. Admitting the defects of our currency system, he said, perfection could not be obtained by the passage of a bill along the lines suggested by the Banking and Currency Committee. It was much easier to attack the present system than to offer a safe substitute. The present system had given the country a greenback currency which enabled the government to carry on war and produced a market for our bonds in the hour of danger and perill. The currency which it produced had never been questioned. This was no time—for experimental legislation. There was no need of indecent speed.

The exigencies confronting the treasury had, Mr. Johnson said, constrained the majority members of the committee to affix their signatures to a report which, in many respects, they did not approve. He took up the bill section by section, and attacked its various provisions. He called attention to Springer's opposition to the repeal of the 10 per cent. tax on State banks last spring, and his present advocacy of a provision for its repeal in this bill.

"I know of no change of heart comparable to;", said Mr. Johnson, "in either sarred or profane history unless it was the catversion of Saul of Tarsus. But there the parallel ends, for Saul was converted to the right, while the gentleman from Ulisios has been converted to the wrong." (Pepubican applause.) Mr. Johnson spoke Almost two hours, and was liberally applauded at the conclusion of his remarks. On motion of Mr. Springer the committee the near two processes of the processes of the processes of the processes of the processes then rose temporarily, and an order made fixing the time of meeting cation of the statues of Webster and Starke.

Mr. Warner of New York, also a member of the Committee on Banking and Currency, took the floor in support of the pending measure. He denied that the bankers who had appeared before the committee were opposed to the Carlisle bill, with two exceptions, Mr. St. John of New York and A. J. Warner of Ohio. He declared that every banker who appeared before the committee had indorsed the principles upon which the bill was based, and in many cases had approved its details.

Mr. Ellis of Kentucky followed and was the first Democratic member of the committee to attack the Carlisle bill. At the outset he proclaimed that he was cond that its passage would remed; of the defects of the present finan none of the defects of the present finan-cial system. In the committee two con-flicting theories had struggled for su-premacy. One urged by the officials of the government who desired protection from the assaults of the gold speculators, and the other urged by the bankers who sought to extegil their privileges and in-crease their power and profits. The peo-ple had nothing to hope from such schemes.

He charged that behind the bill were the same influences that forced the repeal of the Sherman act and which, on that occasion, had predicted that prosperity would follow. The repeal of the Sherman law having now admittedly failed, this currency scheme had been insidiously pressed forward by the same high authority. For thirty years the Democratic party had condemned the national bank system wet it was now proposing not only party had condemned the national bank system yet it was now proposing not only to perpetuate the system, but to perpetuate it in a form more objectionable than that in which it at present existed.

Mr. Ellis, in conclusion, charged, the Democratic party in Congress with being false to its Chicago platform pledges in not passing a tariff bill for revenue only; in not repealing outright the 10 per centuax on State banks and in not restoring silver to its position av a money metal on the same terms with gold.

"The Democratic promises," said he, "will not be redeemed until the people elect a Democrat President, when, if the day comes, as I believe it will, the executive will not be chosen from that small and select class who believe all the financial integrity in this country is quarancial integrity in this country is quarancial integrity in this country is quaran-

Mr. Terry of New York gave notice of an amendment that he should offer to an amendment that he should offer to make circulating notes redeemable by the banks issuing them in equal parts in gold and silver. A resolution was passed to allow the Governor of New Hampshire and staff on the floor during the exer-cises in connection with the dedication of the statutes of Webster and Starke. Adjourned.

qualifiedly in favor of Federal arbitration.
Arthur said that his organization would not even object to compulsory arbitration.
Clark's views were along the same line of general approval of the arbitration. The chiefs agreed also that the plan of national uniers agreed also that the plan of national incorporation of labor organizations, the individuals to be subject to removal for violence or lawlessness, was desirable so long as the individuals were not made personally liable for the acts of organiza-tions as a whole.

He Glowingly Describes His Land in Tropical Terms - Concord, Kern County, the Beautiful-Disillusion.

Issociated Press Leased-wire Service. CHICAGO, Dec. 19,-R. Conneley, roo

813, Temple Court, has California rea estate to sell. C. J. Jones is secretary the Kenwood Manufacturing Company. I so happened the other day that Connele accosted Jones with an offer to trade choice building lots in Concord, Kern county, Cal., for bicycles. This led to negotiations, with the following results: The more Jones learned from Connels about Concord, the more enthusiastic he became. The asking-price of choice building lots, it developed, was $100; selling (or trading) price not definitely settled, but at any price it was dirt cheap. Concord was not only a beautiful city, but its prosthat a good portion of the lots about the courthouse (to be) had been disposed of. A map of Kern county had a line drawn through its center to indicate the new county which the California Legislature was to create next winter. Of course Con ord was to be the capital. r lines of railroad crossed at Con-One, the Southern Pacific, was already built. The others were to be concord. One, the Southern Pacific, was already built. The others were to be constructed next spring. Then the prune horse in the California Building at the World's Fair came up. Conneley suggested it. Jones remembered it. Jones learned that the identical prunes in the identical horse came from Concord.

This settled Jones. The remembrance of that prune horse carried him to such a pitch of enthusiasm that he wrote to Bakersfield, the county seat of Kern county. But here Jones had the misfortune to run up against some cold-blooded people, who did not seem to have the least bit of local pride or hope for the future. He got a reply from the "Kern Valley Abstract Bureau, Bender & Hewitt, preprietors." H. P. Bender is a notary public and J. B. Hewitt a searcher of deeds. The firm appraises land for banks and estates; does a United States land-office business, and is the sole proprietor for Kern county for the Durfee self-correcting system of land titles. Still, with all this, it does not seem to appreciate Concord and its future.

Its reply to Jones contained, among and titles. Still, with all this, it does not seem to appreciate Concord and its future.

Its reply to Jones contained, among other chilling matter, the following: "The supposed town of Concord is a myth, except that the same has been actually laid out and platted and the map of the same filed, but it is a howling desert, without vestige of human habitation, the home of lizards and horned toads. We have had to write this truth regarding the town of Concord so many times that the truth of the great Barnum's phase, "That the American people were born to be fooled," has come home to us in vivid colors. The site of this 'town' is located on the Mojave Desert, and water only exists in the 'mirage.' We trust that you will give our statement in this matter as wide circulation as possible in order to prevent some other misled party from making investment. The assessor has refused to anssess this land in lots and blocks, as the valuation on the same would not cover the expenses of entering on the assessment-roll, hence he assesses the whole section of 640 acres at 75 cents an acre, and has inflated its value even at that price. Total taxes due on the whole section, $7.68, which have gone delinquent, the same not having been paid."

A visit to Conneley's in Temple Court found him away for the day, Maps and plats of subdivisions of Concord decorated the walls, and specimens of semi-tropical productions were displayed liberally. There were indications that choice building lots

Money from an Alderman to Vote the Republican Ticket-Superintendent Byrnes Implicated Yesterday.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19 .- When the Lexov Committee began its work yesterday there were present in the courtroom Police Captains Cross, Alair and Creedon, all in full uniform. Father McDonald of Brooklyn was an interested spectator. In opening Senator Lexow said that he had been officially informed that the suspension of Goff remarked that in his mind there was some doubt as to whether or not it is an indictable offense for a body, even the Police Board, to bring action against a person who has given evidence before the committee. The fact that they had given testimony guaranteed them immunity. "A person who does not testify against him self," continued Goff, "is absolutely ex empt from any indictment and from prose-cution based upon the testimony." Capt. Strauss was the first witness of the day. He testified that his wife's nam was Barbara, and that neither he nor his wife had a bank account. He also said that there was no real estate or mort-

John Rappenhagen, the man who handled Capt. Creedon's $15,000, was the next witness. Witness reiterated his testimony of Friday to the effect that he deposited the check and afterward drew it out on July 16, 1892.

"When did Martin tell you that you could have the $5000 of the $15,0000?"
"When I went to pay $10,000 over to Martin." Well, now, as a matter of fact, was not this $5000 paid you as a bribe instrumentality in the matter?"

"Well, I dare say it was."
Rappenhagen then went on to state that he used the $5000 in paying pressing debts. "Is it not a custom for the saloon-

"Yes, it is so every year."

"He said that he had been assessed only once and then for Capt. Cassidy, since dead. This was in 1891.

Policeman O'Neill was then called to the stand. Sergt. Taylor and Capt. Alair were also called and sworn and asked to leave the room while O'Neill testified.

"While you were on the steamboat rauad, did you ever receive any money from the White Star Line?"

"Yes, $10 a week and my meals."

"Out of the $10 a week did you have to pay anything?"

"Out of the $10 a week did you have to pay anything?"
"Yes, $25 a month to Wardman Michael Gannon, for Capt. Schmittberger."
Officer Beck, another member of the steamboat squad, testified that some time ago he paid Sergt. Taylor of the same squad, $10 which he had received for extra work for a steamship company. He had to pay $10 a month out of his salary.

John O. Mahoney, another member of the steamboat squad, had received $20 a month from the Baltimore & Ohio Railway for his services in the company's yerds. Witness testified that Officers Hall and Gannon and Sergt. Taylor got $10 a month of this money from him for Capts. Alair and Schmittberger.

Oscar B. Conchis, general agent of the French Steamship Company, testified that, in behalf of Capt. Schmittberger his company was offered $1000 if they would refuse to show the books of the company in which an entry of $500 paid to the captain had been made.

Edward Ball, who served under Capt. Gestlin, was the next witness.

"Yes."

"Weil. to whom were you responsible for the collection of this meney?"

"I don't know. I merely continued as I had been doing."

Two witnesses testified to having received money from Alderman Benjamin as bribes to vote the Democratic ticket; but both declared that, after receiving the money they voted the Republican ticket.

Hattle Ross, a colored woman, who some years ago conducted two disorderly houses in this city, swore she paid "protection" meney to wardmen under Capt. Other incidents of interest occurred before the committee, but none of them caused as much excitement as did the mention of Superintendent Byrnes.

Hattle Ross, colored, was then called. She swore that in 1879 she opened disorderly houses on Wooster and West Third streets. In answer to Goff's questions, she said she paid the wardman $50 a month for each house. This was paid to Ward-

At this juncture the committee adjourned until tomorrow.

John Marrett, formerly agent of the Society for the Prevention of Crime, testified that Superintendent Byrnes had buildozed him with threuts and force into divulging the secrets c? his society and had afterward relented when he learned that the witness was a brother Mason.

When the proper time comes I shall tell my story in the proper place."

Further than this the superintendent absolutely refused to say anything. Rumors of Impending arrests of high police officials continue to gain currency hourly; and additional developments in the Lexow Committee sensitions are looked forward to with keen interest. Capt. Schmittberger was balled out later and resumed command of his precinct.

Sergt. Cornellus Reis, another subordinate of Capt. Alair, next testified. Witness had no personal knowledge, nor had he heard any rumor of the collection of money described by Sergt. Taylor.
Then Taylor was recalled to the stand Goff read from an interview with Inspector Steers, in which he was quoted as saying that Taylor's testimony was a tissue of falsehoods, and was given simply as a mode of vengeance for his refusal to grant the sergeant a favor.

Should such action result in the restoration of the monarchy, English influence would henceforth control with Liliuckalani.

THEIR LITTLE FEET. "Tenth—There is another consideration which bears upon this point. The British are very much in the habit of retaining much talk at present of a cable between the Pacific colonies 'to land only on Brit-ish soil.' Should an English military force be established on shore in Honolulu to preserve order there might be not read-ily found the opportune moment for its withdrawal. Whatever the willingness of withdrawal. Whatever the willingness of the home government to yield to the claims of the United States, strong colonial pressure would be brought upon it to oppose these claims. It should not be forgotten in this connection that Pearl Harbor offers strategically and otherwise the finest site for a naval and coaling station to be found in the whole Pacific, "Eleventh—Although I had fall confidence in the republic's ability to preserve order, and regarded the chance of an up-order, and regarded the chance of an uprising of the Royalists, even under the favorable circumstances mentioned above, as very remote, I did not feel that even such a remote chance should be taken, and I decided to postpone the Philadel-phia's departure at least until the ar-rival of the Australia's mail on the 11th inst. Before reaching this conclusion I consulted with the United States Minismy opinion by the receipt of a petition to keep the Philadelphia at Honolulu, signed by several prominent merchants and busi-ness men, representing large American moneyed interests. The existence of this antagonism and of its influencea should always be taken into account. Their expression was noticeable during the last few days of my stay at Mondelbus and especially before Maj. The English and Royalists were equally elated at the impending departure of the Philadelphia, leaving the Champion in port, while the supporters of the government regarded the situation with regret. While I would not hesitate in the least to leave the islands entirely alone, I deem it unsafe to leave them under Brish protection. It jeopardizes our influences there, and might lead to an awkward complication. The position of the United States, as expressed by the late Senate resolution, is sufficiently defined, and in its relation to other powers is clearly undersuod by both natives and clearly understood by both natives and foreigners in Hawaii; but that position involves responsibilities, as well as rights, and if we are not at hand to perform the which, in the event of a disturbance, steps in and takes our place. "You see this is covered all over, don't you?"

"I see it is."
"There isn't room on it for another blamed fly?"
"I suppose not."
"Well. when I tried to pull 'em off so I could set it again, they wouldn't come off. The other one's the same way. The game, I reckon, is to make a fellow keep on buying 'em. I'm not going to do it, and I think it's a darned swindle, and you can take your old fly-paper back again, and I'll never buy another cent's worth at this store, so help me Nebuchadnezzar."

(Puck:) After Descon Smithers had finished his call on the pastor, the latter's little daughter said:
"Papa, didn't the deacon say he didn't believe in Santa Claus?"
"That's what he said, love."
"Then, papa, won't we have to try him for heresy?"

AND TUMORS CURED S. R. CHAMLEY, M. D.

The Necessity of Potash in Straw-

it is cheaper. The yield in quarts I did not take a separate account of, being content to know the net profit.

Since then I have been a liberal user of potash in every available form. While I would not recommend a top dressing of kainit at the rate of a ton an acre, as I then used, I have found that even large quantities can be used with great profit if thoroughly mixed with the soil before the crop is planted. Even then a fresh application of 300 pounds an acre the fall before the berries ripen will pay well.

Where the land is to be kept for some years in berries, and well supplied with potash and the necessary quantity of dissolved bone it will not run down, it will be better to substitute murlate of potash for the kainit, say 600 pounds kainit, 400 pounds of murlate potash, 600 pounds dissolved bone and 200 pounds nitrate of soda per acre; one-half to be applied broadcast in spring before planting, one-fourth in November and one-fourth in February following, The last two applications should be as a top dressing over the plants.

It will do no harm at those seasons berry Culture. grower:) The clearest and most indisputable fact in strawberry culture is that liberal applications of potash are necesthe plants.

It will do no harm at those seasons while the plants are dormant. Never apply anything on the plants in the summer able fact in strawberry culture is that liberal applications of potash are necessary for success. We hear a good deal about the unused stores of potash in the soil. Now, I have grown berries on all kinds of soil, ranging from black swampy bottom all the way through sandy loam up to extreme sandiness, and back again through gravelly soil and clayed loam to stiff clay, and I have never yet found the soil on which the free and proper use of good potash manures did not give quick and large results.

I have been a grower in fruit, strawberries largely, since 1874. For the past ten years or more I have devoted my time exclusively to this business. I have now fifty acres in strawberries alone, and keep over one variety under test. My constant aim has been, first, to discover and plant the finest and most profitable varieties, second, to mature them in such a way as to obtain the best results in size of berry, beauty of color and firmness of shipping quality.

My first experiment in high manuring ended in disaster, though fortunately the quantity of land involved was somewhat less than two acres. It was away back in my goslin days as a berry grower, and I took it for granted that the highest priced fertilizer was necessarily the best for everything, strawberries included. So I bought a ton of fertilizer guaranteed 10 per cent. ammonia, and sowed it broad-cast oves the plants, half in October and half in the February before they came into bearing. Ammonia came high in those days, and the fertilizer cost me somehalf in the February before they came into bearing. Ammonia came high in those days, and the fertilizer cost me somewhere about $55 a ton. The result was the most luxuriant crop of plants in the county—and the smallest crop of berries. Hunting for berries in that wilderness of plants was like hunting for the proverbial needle in the haystack. And what few there were proved so soft and colorless that they were about wort less. After that I bought no more high-priced fertilizer, but mixed my own, using dissolved bone, nitrate of soda and either kainit or muriate of potash. But I again made a mistake, that time in expecting too much from phosphoric acid, which left me to use too large a proportion of dissolved bone. Phosphoric acid is necessary to the proper maturing and coloring left me to use too large a proportion of dissolved bone. Phosphoric acid is necessary to the proper maturing and coloring of the berry, but more than 600 pounds of dissolved bone per acre, I have never found to be profitable, and I have made repeated test with all quantities from 100 to 2000 pounds an acre.

But I have never yet found the limit beyond which potash did not pay. My first experiment in the liberal use of it was a purely accidental ene. It happened a good many years ago. I had four acres of strawberries on which in February I intended to apply as a top dressing a mixture of 500 pounds dissolved bone, 250 pounds kainit and 75 pounds of nitrate of soda per acre. But by mistake my hired man applied the kainit before mixing and as his sense of proportion was a wild one, the 1000 pounds of kainit intended for four acres all whent down on exactly half an acre.

I was pretty sure the plants on that half acre would be destroyed. However, I mixed the dissolved bone and nitrate of soda and applied it over the whole four acres. Of this, of course, only the two previous years it had 250 pounds of kainit per acre.

Knowledge is Awakened.

(American Economist.) There never has been a time in the history of this country that the great majority of the voters did not believe in protective tariff. They have sometimes been opposed to certain measures embodied in a protective tariff bill. They have more often been deceived as to the nature and provisions of a bill by its enemies. The latter was the case in 1892. There never was a measure passed by Congress the provisions of which were so distorted and so misrepresented as the McKinley bill. But "Truth is mighty and must prevail." And howis mighty and must prevail." And how-ever the McKinley bill was misunderstood ever the McKinley bill was misunderstood at the beginning, however strongly it was condemned in 1892, it is evident now, from the crowds that have greeted Gov. McKinley everywhere, that the beneficent provisions of the bill which bears his name have at last been recognized. Such a recognition was inevitable. The unprecedented prosperity which followed the passage of the McKinley bill, the unprecedented disaster which has followed the elevation of its enemies to power, are evidence so plain that the dullest can see their meaning.

The fact that no serious attempt is apparently contemplated to deal with the currency question has a bad effect here, and is the main cause of keeping dealers from touching Americans yet. LAND PATENTS APPROVED. CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—The Canadian Pacific gained a decided victory that caused no end of trouble for the roads in the Central Traffic Association, notably the Grand Trunk and the Michigan Central. When the meeting convened, this morning, the Canadian Pacific demanded that the differentials which had been allowed it, $10 and $15 via Port Arthur and $7.50 and $5 via the Shasta route, should be made to apply on the territory as far south as London, Ont. The western roads at once refused the request and the question was under debate for the entire day.

At 5 o'clock this afternoon the western men were firm in their position that they would under no conditions grant the differentials which would allow the Canadian Pacific to tap the territory of the Grand Trunk and the Michigan Central. An hour later, however, they had changed their minds and it was announced that the differential would apply on business at London as requested by the Canadian Pacific. This will bring the lines of the Central Traffic Association squarely into the fight with the Canadian Pacific and the matter will probably assume large proportions before it is settled.

Evidently Spite Work.

The case of Mrs. E. Dessault, charged by Mrs. Kate Manion with malicious mischief, came up in Justice Seaman's court yesterday, and the defendant was found not guilty and discharged.

The evidence showed that Mrs. Dessault had taken charge of the Purceil House on Third street after Mrs. Manion, and had taken up the fifteen yards of old Brussels carpet she was alleged to have maliciously destroyed, in order to replace it with some new pieces. The complaint was obviously sworn out by a spiteful woman in a spirit of revenge, and such was the court's opinion.

About the only offense Mrs. Dessault committed was that she remarked that her predecessor was a vile housekceper, and left her rooms in a filthy condition.

THE STATE DIVISION BUGABOO.

That more or less turbulent and frothy weekly. The Wave, which is projected upon the populace from San ancisco, and is alleged to be made for people "in the swim." works itself into hydrophobic frenzy over a fake dispatch sent out from this city, stating that the Southern California Supervisors are overwhelmingly in favor of a division of the State. Proceeding upon the guileless assumption that this fake dispatch is gospel truth, the hebdomadal disgorges a nasty and driveling tirade of abuse, directed at the people of Southern California.

Such choice phrases as "a race of expectorating and lungless beings," and distended livers, "liverless and lungless lawyers," "the coughing counties;" etc., etc., make up the major portion of this maudlin, hining, puerile and petty mess of verbal garbage. From the nebulous mass of vulgar and incoherent sentences it is possible, by close reading and translation of the language into English, to gather two or three ideas. One of these is that, in the opinion of the hebdomadal, the people of Southern California have less lung capacity than the people of the zone m San Francisco north. Another is that the volume of expectoration is greater south of the Tehachepi than north of it. Another is that the livers of Southern Californians are either larger or smaller (it doesn't matter which) than those of residents in the regions of San Francisco and Truckee cidentally, the hebdomadal contends that the north is strongly, if not unanimously, in favor of State divisionse of some fancied differencewhether of lungs, livers, thoraxes, or what not-between the inhabitants of the two sections.

Now, this question is not one of lungs, nor of livers, nor of expector. ating capacity, nor of hebdomadals or abdominals, nor of bears that have such things carried to them. It is not a question at all, so far as Southern lifornia is concerned, for no over ruling sentiment in favor of State division exists south of the Tehachepi. One of the San Diego Supervisors, at the recent convention, advocated the subject, but the matter was not even lered by the supervisors.

If a sentiment favorable to division existed when the South was weak, thinly populated and unable to obtain all that it was entitled to in the way of State patronage and equality of blic burdens, that sentiment is rapdly passing away, since this section as advanced so much more rapidly than the north in population, wealth and influence, that it is now able to pel recognition, and to secure its nat proportion of representation. Yes, indeed! train-robbery is mur det, and if the Arizona law making such a crime punishable with death is contrary to the Constitution of the United States, then the sooner that Constitution is so modified as to suit the requirements of a condition of affairs that was never contemplated by the founders of the Union, the best ter will it be for this country-for humanity.

ONE LAW FOR ALL

It is a noteworthy fact that Debs and his co-conspirators were convicted under the anti-trust act of 1800. The counsel for the prisoners contended that the anti-trust law applied only to combinations of capital, but Judg. Woods took a different view of the matter, holding that the law was equally applicable to labor trusts and to capitalistic trusts. The soundness of this opinion is impregnable.

The outcome of the Debs case illus trates anew the fact, which all citi zens should thoroughly understand, that the laws are made for all classe of people, and not for one class another. That would indeed be a one sided and unjust law which should prohibit the obstruction of traffic by capitalistic combines, or trusts, while sanctioning the obstruction of traffic by labor combines, or trusts.

The labor trusts aim at essentially the same objects, in their field of operations, as do the capitalistic trusts in theirs. The law must know no invidious distinctions, but must apply impartially to all.

Debs et al. arrogantly assume to be "fighting the trusts in behalf of the people." But Debs et al. are not the people, any more than are their avowed opponents. Labor combines and capitalistic combines are alike antgonistic to the public weal. A law which restricts the operations of one must restrict the operations of all, if it be a just law and impartially enforced. Judge Woods, in his view of the matter, reached the core of the principle involved, though he exercised undue and needless clemency toward Debs. Howard, et al.

As previously noted in these columns, four of the students engaged in the hazing of young Campbell at the University of California have been temporarily suspended, while others are to be reprimanded. The committee of the faculty appointed to investigate the affair, in their re port, state that the published accounts of the hazing "were grossly exagger ated and falsified;" that "there wer no such atrocities as reported;" and that "the conduct of the complainant had been in the highest degree pepre hensible," "Nevertheless," says the president of the University, in announcing the result of the inquiry, "however great the provocation, haz ing, even of the mildest kind, can not be tolerated in this University. Let us hope, for the good name of the institution and of California, that this rule will be rigidly enforced.

Admiral Walker, in his report to the War Department, states in substance that British influences in Hawaii are invariably antagonistic to American influences, and he expresses the opinion that the British would not hesitate to selze upon any pretext that might present itself to assist the Royalists, with whom they are in sympathy. It is quite evident that Uncle Sam should keep a sharp eye on the little islandrepublic, which reverse the Stars and Stripes with the loyalty of the spirit of '76. It may be necessary, yet, for the American eagle to take this brave little island-nation permanently under his protecting wing.

A measure is pending in the South be taken, and that it is generally the Carolina Legislature providing for the exemption from taxation, for a period of ten years, of all new manufac.o.ics established in that State. If South Carolina and other Southern States would break away from their mos grown free-trade idols and join the American party of protection, they could all secure an abundance of profitable manufactures within the next ten years. Their magnificent section would awaken as if by magic from its Rip-Van-Winkle sleep, and would enter upon an era of enterprise and development which would aston-

The New England Tariff Reform League, in announcing its change of name to the New England Free Trade League, declares that "we hitch our wagon to a star." The particular star to which this English dog-cart is hitched is not named. It is to be hoped, however, that the vehicle has been hitched to a fast flyer, which will yank it so far into celestial space that it will never find its way back to the United States. Joseph D. Weeks, at a recent labor gathering, knocked the stuffing completely out of the compulsory arbitration idea in two sentences. He said: "If you compel a man to work at a he doesn't want to work at, that is slavery. If, on the other hand, you compel a man to pay wages that he doesn't want to pay, that is confiscation." An obvious truth has seldom been more pertinently stated.

A Washington dispatch says that some of the Republican statesmen have already nominated, as a presidential ticket for 1896, "Reed and Me Kinley." It's a good ticket-a grand ticket. Both are magic names; but the first should be last and the last If the decision of the United States

Li Hung Chang might now be Emperor of China had he dared to se'ze the reins of power at the opportune moment—so says a Yokohama dispatch. But poor old Li lacked the nerve to strike the decisive blow. Can it be that the lugging away of so many of his clothes reduced him to this abjectness?

A student of Shakespeare, he has made a careful and conscientious study of one of the greatest roles known to the theater, and we may anticipate a masterly and engaging performance. He has just completed a great engagement in San Francisco where the press has united in commending him as one of the bright particular stars in the dramatic firmament; who sets out character with such skill and charm as to be at once delightful and instructive.

COMING ATTRACTION.—In consequence of the heavy demand for seats through the mails for the Salvini engagement, Manager Wyatt is compelled to announce that no further orders can be considered through this channel, but that the diagram will be open to everyone on Friday morning when the first-comer will get the first choice. The repertoire will be as follows: Monday and Wednesday nights, Victog Hugo's masterpiece, "Ruy Blas;" Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings, "The Three Guardsmen;" Friday night, "Don Caesar de Bazan," and at the Saturday matinee, the famous pastoral comedy, "Friend Fritz."

The many fine pictures it contains are artistic reproductions of photographs and convey a vivid impression of the beautiful, bustling metropolis, surrounded by orange groves and flanked by snow-capped mountains. Unharmed by the reaction which followed the land boom of 1886-87, Los Angeles has steadily grown until it now boasts a population of 75,000 and bids fair to reach the 100,000 mark before the next national census is taken. Of its rare climate there is no need to speak, for it has proven a magnet to invalids from all parts of the world. The picturesque charm of Los Angeles has inspired many writers, and it is therefore high praise to deciare that nowhere else can a clearer idea of the place and the character of the adjoining country be obtained than in the broad pages of this volume. Scenes at the Taking of Port Arthur. A Magnificent Artillery Duel and Gallant Charges End in Slaughter.

The Town Sacked by the Victorious Japanese and the Inhabitants
Butchered—Chinese Officers Disgraced.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19 .- The World to morrow will print the following special advices from its correspondent, Creelman, who was with the Japanese army, dated Port Arthur, November 24 via Vancouver, B. C., December 19:

Korea has been suddenly turned into headlong savage war of conquest. It is no longer a conflict between civilizatio and barbarism. Japan for the last four days has trampled civilization under the feet of her conquering army. The taking of Port Arthur and the possession of one of the most powerful strongholds in the world was too great a strain upon the Japanese character, which relapsed in a few hours back into the brutish state from which it was awakened a generation ago which it was awakened a generation ago.

"Almost the entire population found in Port Arthur has been massacred and the work of butchering the unarmed and unresisting inhabitants has been continued. The streets are choked up with mutilated corpses. In spite of the vastness of the battlefield and the strength of the batteries massed in this mixture phase. teries massed in this mighty chain of land and sea, the taking of Port Arthur is robbed of its dignity as a battle by the fact that a large and woll-trained army attacked a face rabble. There was a great deal of artillery thunder and scientific materials. tific maneuvering of the troops among the cannon-crowned hills, but the infantry cannon-crowned hills, but the infantry fighting was incidental and the 'butcher bill,' as the hardened campaigner would call it, was insignificant. The Japanese lost fifty dead and 250 wounded in carrying a fortress that would have cost them 1000 men had it been occupied by European or American citizens. China is now at the mercy of the Island empire. In a few days the fierce Sennai troops will be ready to leave Japan to Join Field Marshal Oyama's army and then the third and final movemen toward Peking will begin. CHIVALROUS AND GENEROUS.

"Up to the moment Port Arthur was entered, I can bear witness that both of Japan's armies now in the field were chiventered, I can bear witness that both of Japan's armies now in the field were chivalrous and generous to the enemy. There was not a stain on her flag when we left Kin-Chow on November 17, and began the march on Port Arthur. The battery of thirty siege-guns were still floundering in the Team, but Gen. Hassagwa had arrived with the famous Kumuanto troops, and the pntire army of invasion was assembled, consisting like 23,000 men. News had been received from the Japanese spies swarming about Port Arthur and a general plan of action was agreed upon. "On November 17 the cavalry scouts reconnoitered the villages of Suishyeh in the valley commanded by the land forts of Port Arthur, and then fell back, after a skirmish, to Dojoshus, a hamiet at the eastern foot of a fortified monument and the hill commanding the way to a wide valley adjoining the Suishyeh Valley. At 10 o'clock the next morning the Chinese advanced out of the Port Arthur forts and surprised a small body of Japanese cavalry scouts in the valley. The Chinese had there field-guns.

"They arrived at the monument fort just in time to see Nish's advance brigade take up its position and send flanking columns around the hill to cut off the enemy in the rear. The valleys behind were filled with troops rushing along at the top of their speed to the rescue. I could see the Chinese advancing in three columns from the southwest and northwest. Away to the left were the Japanese cavalry in a cloud of dust, cutting their way back on the main road through the lines of tossing red and white standards.

There were at least five thousand Chinese in the three columns. Suddenly the enemy caught sight of our flank movement, and began to retreat. The Japanese had lost eight men and forty-two wounded. No man can say how many the enemy lost. I saw the Japanese dead on the road, with Litts'th heads gone and their bodies mutilated. Several corpses were without hands, two had been sutchered like sheep. and ravines into the Sunsysh Valley and returned to Port Arthur.

"On the morning of the 20th, after the armies had been placed in a straight line on the east of Port Arthur, with a range of low mountains between and a mass of forts beyond, a council of war was held. The field-marshal and his staff met Gens. Yamajai, Nishi, Noghi and Hassagawa, with their staffs. It was decided that part of Yamajai's division should make a great turning movement on the flank of the Chinese, attacking the left, while Hassagawa's brigade should follow with an attack on the east of the forts forming the Chinese right. The rest of Yamajai's troops were to move straight down the Suishyeh Valley, and, with field and slege batteries, were to attack the Chinese front from the north and move into Port Arthur. Meanwhile the independent column marching along the east under Lieut. Matsumitsu would simultaneously move against the eastern forts.

THE BATTLE BEGINS.

"But while the council of war was pro-ceeding, the Chinese began to realize that the Japanese had established their moun-tain batteries on the hills commanding ceeding, the Chinese began to realize that the Japanese had established their mountain batteries on the hills commanding the left center of the Chinese position and decided to advance out of Port Arthurand, disladge, them. Then, began a tremendous artillery "fight." Within a few minutes regiment after regiment could be seen running in clouds of dust across the head of the valley into the ravine leading to the support of the Japanese ertillery position. The air was filled with shells and the Chinese gradually concentrated their fire until the trees began to disappear from the western slope. The Chinese marched out of Port Arthur in three columns. One descended from the two dragon forts and the other two came out of the Port Arthur Valley.

"The ground was torn with shells as they marched forward, but they never faltered for a moment. Within a quarter of a mile of the Japanese artillery, the Chinese line spread itself out and, wheeling to the left, went straight for the hills to carry the batteries by charge. The fire became too hot, and they lay down on their faces with their banner-poles stuck in the ground, a magnificent target upon which the Japanese trained their pieces. Within three minutes two shells struck the line exactly and tore great gaps. Instantly every flag dropped and the Chinamen took to their heels, but in a few minutes they re-formed and the Chinamen took to their heels, but in a few minutes they re-formed and the Chinese was another Chinese line on a knoll with three field-guns which checked the Japanese advance and enabled the broken line to make a safe retreat.

"At 6:45 o'clock the following morning, the mountain batteries began to play upon Isulyama, and the guns of the triple forts covered the hilliside with fame and smoke. The Chinese had five-inch Krupp rifes and nine-inch mortars, with auxiliary batteries of revolving and quick-drink guns. Shells began to drop on us from all sides, the Nero forts, the glant guns of Oguasan and the Chinese field batteries turned fire against us, for Isuiyama was the key, and once it fell, the whole left finnk of the Chinese would be exposed. The taking of Isuiyama was the signal for Hassagawa to attack the forts on the right wing.

Isuiyama was the signal for Hassagawa to attack the forts on the right wing.

AN HEROIC CHARGE.

"As the batteries splintered the hill-sides and sent clouds of earth up out of the plowed ground, the infantry line, kneeling at the base of the slope in front of Isulyama, opened fire, and kept up steady volleys for ten or twelve minutes. Gen. Nishi was below, directing the attack. Suddenly the men stood up and advanced in the teeth of the guns, firing continuously as they marched. On, on, pressed the slender black line. Then the battalion in the ravino moved forward on the right to attack the side of the first fort.

"As the line reached the foot of the steep scarp in front of the walls, it suddenly swung around and joined the column-on the right, and the united battalions rushed up the steep bank toward the side wall, while the Chinese shells tore gaps in their ranks. By this time a mountain battery had been hauled up a dizzy ridge where Yamajai stood, and five minutes afterward these guns were in position. We were droupping shells inside on the first fort.

these guns were in position. We were dropping shells inside on the first fort. With a ringing yell the Japanese dashed to the fort and scaled the ramparts, shooting and bayoneting the flying garrison and chasing the enemy along the connecting walls.

walls.

"A cheer went up from the hills and the valleys as the victorious troops pushed on to the second fort and finally drove the fugitives out of the redoubt down into the Port Arthur Valley. Isuiyama fell at 1:50 o'clock after an hour and twenty mintes of fighting.

s.50 o'clock after an hour and twenty minutes of fighting.

LIKE AN INFERNO.

"The Japanese field and siege-guns were pounding away at the seven forts, and Yamajai's mountain batteries joined them. It was a colossal duel from Shoju. There shot out strange sprays of fires. The arsenal in Port Arthur had caught fire and was ripping, roaring and vomiting fiame and smoke like a volcano, as an acre of massed shells and cartridges exploded. The Shoju and Nero forts were the prey of Hassagawa and, as the cannon battered the garrisons, he charged up from the eastern valley, taking the advantage of earth-seams and small ridges.

"Hassagawa had about six thousand men, the finest fighting blood in Japan. The northern fort of Shoju was a most active factor on the Chinese side. Two torpedo mines were exploded in front of the invaders, but the key was touched too boon. All over the valley were aunken mines, connected by wires with the walled camps and forts. But in the heat of the fight the Chinese falled to use them. Just as the front rank of Hassagawa's brigade was closing in upon Shoju, a Japanese shell exploded inside the northern fort, and, with a groan and a shock that stopped the battle for a moment the shell struck the heavy guns which were piled on the floor, and the fort blew up.

"The garrison scrambled out over the hilltops, and Hassagawa's men came swooping around the rough mountain to find the fort a mass of flames. That ended all hope of defending the seven forts. The Chinese field along the ridges and down the valley roads. Hassagawa's troops were in possession of Shoju and Nero hills. In order to take the town the troops had to cross the bridge or wade in the river, but on the other side was a road leading between small hills, and on either side of the road were riffepits filled with Chinese infantry. On the hill to the right of the road ware rifferies and down the valley roads. Hassagawa's troops were in possession of Shoju and Nero hills. In order to take the town the tripes of the road ware rifferies and "Torpedo boats were going through the waves and sinking junks loaded with men, women and children endeavoring to escape. The water was filled with drowning people. The massacre had begun as the last of the troops moved from behind the walls of the camp and under shelter of the eastern wall of the drilling-grounds. Then they opened fire on the Chinese pits guarding the entrance to Port Arthur, sending volley upon volley across the stream against the "rifle-pits. For fifteen minutes the three skirmish lines kept stream against the rine-pits. For teen minutes the three skirmish lines k up a fire and the plucky Chinese w driven from the position. Finally a so column covered by the skirmishers vanced across the bridge and marcilong the road leading to the town. the same time Marshal Oyama ordered the reserve center to move down the vallet and thousands of them came pouring along the road behind the troops alread; on their way to the town. AFTER THE BATTLE THE SLAUGH-

"Not a shot was fired in reply, the battle was over as far as Port Arthur was concerned. Even Ogunsan was silent and deserted. The soldiers had made their escape, and the frightened inhabitants were cowering in the streets. As the troops moved on they saw the heads of their slaip comrades hanging by cords, with the noses and ears gone. There was a rude arch in the main street decorated with bloody Japanese, heads. A slaughter followed. The infurjated soldiers killed every one they saw. No attemot to take prisoners was made. Women and children were hunted and shot as they field to the hills with their protectors. "The town was sacked from end to end, and the inhabitants were butchered in their homes. The wan of the second regiment reached Fort. Ogunsan and found it deserted. Then they discovered a junk in the harbor crowded with fugitives. A platoon was stretched across the end of the wharf and fired into the boat until every woman, man and child was killed. The torpede-boats outside had already sunk three junks filled with terror-stricken people. I am satisfied not more than one hundred Chinamen were killed in fair battle at Port Arthur, and that at least two thousand men were put to death."

THE FIRST JAPANESE ARMY.

THE FIRST JAPANESE ARMY.
YOKOHAMA, Dec. 19.—The first Japanese army, under command of Field Marshal Nodau, Field Marshall Yamagata having been invalided at home, is operating from Chien-Cheng with detachments thrown out toward New-Shwang and Moukden. Little headway is being made. The country is dimoult to traverse, and the enemy is making a resistance, it appears that the first army is not anxious to get to New-Chwang or Shanghai-Kwang before the other forces are ready to strike Tien-Tsin. A searching official inquiry is being made into the Port Arthur atroci-

APPROACHING NAI-CHANG

APPROACHING NAI-CHANG.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—The Japanese Legation here has received a dispatch from Hiroshima, sent through its minister at St. Petersburg, detailing the movements of the Japanese troops in China. Following is the message:

HIROSHIMA, December 19.
The third division of the first army took Hsi-Mo-Chang on December 12, and occupied Hai-Chong on December 13. Both places are on the route to and near Nai-Chang and Liao-Yang.

(Signed)

At the legation it is said that the third army is evidently on its way to join Field Marshal Count Oyama at Nai-Chang. This is an exceedingly valuable strategic point. The message gives the first authentic information as to the movements of the third army, and shows it is not preparing to menace Shanghal, as has been rumored.

Recent Advances in Astronomy.

(Harper's Weekly:) Three-fourths of the sun's energy that reaches the earth is in waves, as they are balled, that are too long to affect the eye in the form of light, but these "infra-red" waves play an important part in sustaining light, and a further study of the spectrum in which they are arranged will probably be the means of solving hany important and now obscure problems in meterology and kindred subjects. This lower part of the solar spectrum was first explored to any considerable extent by Mr. Langley in 1881, and within the past few months he has extended the details of his original map through an entirely automatic process, by means of the bolometer, an instrument especially dedetails of his original map through an en-tirely automatic process, by means of the bolometer, an instrument especially de-vised for the purpose, and brought to such wonderful sensitiveness that it can detect a change of temperature of less than one millions of a degree.

The latest determination of the distance of the sun from the earth is from a dis-wonderful sensitiveness that it can detect a change of temperature of less than one one-million®n of a degree.

The latest determination of the distance of the sun from the earth is from a discussion by Dr. Gill of a series of observations of the asteroid Victoria. Dr. Gill's result is 92,800,000 miles, a figure probably very close to the truth, and agreeing well with the value obtained by Prof. Harkness from all available data. The temperature of the sun has been reinvestigated by Le Chatelier in France, and by Gray and Wilson in England, and is found to be between 12,000 and 14,000 deg. Fabr. Important improvements have been made in the methods of studying the sun's surface by Prof Hale, of the University of Chicago, and M. Deslandres, of the Paris Observatory. Prof. Hale, with an instrument he calls the "spectrohellograph," secured in 1891 the first photograph of the spectrum of a promienenc from the surface of the uncelipsed sun, and he has even photographed successfully the forms of these enormous jets of burning gas, as well as the spots and faculae, or little shining points, upon the sun's surface. These photographs show that the faculae are distributed all over the sun, instand obeing near the edge orly, and their further study must assuredly add much to our knowledge of the sun's constitution.

A Well Trained Dog.

A Well Trained Dog.

(London Weekly Telegraph:) A new use has been found for a terrier dog. In South Kensington one day last week a correspondent was struck by the manner in which a lady had evidently trained her dog. The streets were dirty. The lady had a parcel in one hand, an umbrella in the other. Her dress, although what women call a short one, would have touched the mud had it not been held up. And it was to this she had trained her Irish terrier. Trotting along on one side, just a pace behind her, he held the tail of her well-made gown in his teeth as carefully and as daintily as a retriever carries game. Never once did the dog allow the dress to touch the ground.

"Young architects should be taught to reason, to accustom their minds to study and analysis; but instead of this many of them never take up the classics at all, or if they do, abandon them long before they are mastered. Under such circumstances the student of architecture is not in a condition to make wise and intelligent discriminations, nor to develop as well as he might, had he finished his education with a single and definite aim. Neither is he fitted to do his part toward the maintaining of that high position to which architecture is justly entitled in the world of progress. The student should have a fair knowledge of sanitary and hygienic laws, to enable him to make intelligent provisions in his plans for meeting the wants of the human body by providing for proper heating and ventilation.

The discussion which followed the reading of Mr. Preston's paper was participated in by City Engineer Dockweiler. Gervaise Purcell, O. Morgan and several others of those present, the meeting finally being adjourned to the third Wednesday in January.

The association is the first of the kind started in Southern California, and it enters upon its existence with a large list of members.

It was rumored before the election that,

The choice for Chief of the Fire Department is said to lie between Walter S. Moore and Thomas Strohm, with odds in favor of Moore.

The weekly business was cleared up by the City Council at an adjourned meeting yesterday afternoon, the members present being Councilmen Smith, Pessell, Nickell, President Teed called Councilman Munson to the chair and moved to request the Bridge Committee to investigate and report the cost of painting the bridges across the river.

Councilman Nickell moved to amend by authorizing the committee to employ an expert to see how much it ought to cost to do the work. It had, he thought, cost about twice as much to do the painting as it otherwise would. 'He had heard that for the painting of the First-street and Downey-avenue bridges it had already cost $2000.

The motion to authorize the employing of experts was adopted after being amended so as to make the expense not to exceed $10.

Councilman Munson spoke in favor of acting on the matter instead of turning it over to the incoming Council, which action, he believed, would result in a serious delay. Good barracks, he said, could be provided in Elysian Park for the purpose and there is plenty of work there that could be done without heavy expense to the city. The scheme could be put in operation economically so as to provide decent lodging and feed the men in operation economically so as to de decent lodging and feed the men He believed citizens could be inwell. house to house for something to eat as at present.

Councilman Nickell, chairman of the committee, said if anything of the kind is to be done in the matter as proposed it would probably result in an expense of several thousand dollars to the city. It was so near the end of the year that if any such movement was to be started the burden of it would be forced upon the incoming Council. If he (Nickell) was a member of the incoming Council he would not like it to have such a responsibility involving so great an expense thrust upon him.

The recommendation of the committe The recommendation of the committee was adopted by a vote of Councilmen Smith, Pessell, Nickell and Rhodes. The only members to vote against the adoption of the report were Councilman Munson and President Teed.

President Teed moved that crosswalks be laid over the west side of Grand avenue to the street car tracks on the south side of Twenty-third street, and at Thirtieth and Main streets.

Referred to the board of Public Works. Councilman, Munson moved that the Street Superintendent be instructed to dig a trench for water from the south end of Loma drive in such a manner that flood water will not overflow private property, but will be conducted away from that point in the ditch to such streets as will convey water without damage to private interests. Referred, to the Board of Public Works.

Councilmen Pessell and Smith both lie Works.

Councilmen Pessell and Smith both spoke of having had scarcely any of the crosswalks ordered placed in their wards, and President Teed said he would like to know how it was that fine culverts of a costly character had been put down in some of the wards without being ordered, while the crosswalks ordered by the Council had not been put down.

while the crosswalks ordered by the Council had not been put down.

In reply, Street Superintendent Watson, who had chanced to come in while the matter was being talked of, said the work he had had done was only such as it was necessary to do. In numerous instances old crossings had become worn out, and, he believed in such cases, it was his duty to see to it that they were repaired. He thought the Council did not understand these matters as well as he did, in reference to what the greatest needs were.

The Courts. TRIAL OF A BIG DAMAGE SUIT COM-

The case of Sanford S. Scofield vs. the Southern California Railway Company, an action for $25,000 damages, for the loss of a wife, came on for trial before Judge Shaw and a jury in Department Five yes-terday, S. V. Landt and W. T. Williams appearing for the plaintiff and W. J. Hunsaker, Esq., for the defendant.

terday, S. V. Landt and W. T. Williams appearing for the plaintiff and W. J. Hunsaker, Esq., for the defendant.

The plaintiff, who brings suft as administrator of the estate of Mary F. Scofield, deceased, claims that for some years prior to the accident which resulted in the death of his wife, they lived together on a ranch about one and a half miles southwest of Glendora station; that Mrs. Scofield was in the habit of driving to Glendora two or three times every week to do the marketing for the family, on which occasions she always drove a safe, gentle, family horse; that in order to reach Glendora it was necessary for her to cross the defendant's tracks just west of Glendora station; that on the morning of August 5, 1893, Mrs. Scofield, accompanied by her little son, drove up to Glendora, as usual, and after doing her marketing started upon her return journey, and reached the Glendora depot about 9:30 o'clock; that on account of the negligence of the defendant corporation, which had planted, and caused to be maintained, a row of pepper trees, also because of an outhouse, on the west end of the depot grounds, it was impossible to see the track from the road until the crossing was reached; that according to the schedule no trains were due at the depot at that particular time, but that just as she was driving across the track a delayed overland train came along at an unusually high rate of speed, and without any warning bell or whistle, dashed through the depot and struck the vehicle in whigh she was riding; that she received such injuries as to cause her death almost instantly, while her little son was seriously injured.

The defendant corporation enters a gen-costs of suit.

The suit was brought to obtain payment for building material furnished by Wigmore, who is a dealer in lumber and builders' supplies. There was little testimony and no defense.

THE PATTERSON CASE

THE PATTERSON CASE

Judge Smith and a jury were again occupied yesterday in hearing the testimony for the defense in the Patterson case. Twenty-three witnesses, were examined during the day's assion, for the purpose of showing that, prior to this charge, the defendant had borne an excellent reputation in the community, and also with the view of proving that a man answering to the description given of James Colville, had been seen near the vicinity of the assault immediately after its commission.

While a number of new witnesses were introduced, there were no new developments in the line of testimony put in by the defense, the point relied upon being the same now as upon the first trial. This is that the defendant accompanied a friend named James Colville on a hunting expedition on the afternoon of July 12 last; that Colville suddenly left Patterson, and, after firing at the train, disappeared, and has not been seen since; that Patterson thereupon started to drive back to town alone, but was arrested and charged with the crime.

The case will, in all probability, be concluded late this afternoon.

Federal Courts.

TRIAL OF THE OPIUM SMUGGLERS COMMENCED. In the United States District Court, yesterday, the case against Justus Allgern, Alex Smith and Frank Mendes, charged with having amuggled 140 five-tael cans of opium into the Santa Monica Canon on September 13 last, came up for trial before Judge Ross and a Jury. The defendants were represented by Messrs. Z.

G. Peck and Pierce, while United States

Attorney Lewis appeared for the government.

The Jurors selected to try the case were: G. H. Henck, W. P. Leavitt, P. H. Mathews, J. M. Menedee, G. H. Morton, H. A. Osgood, E. W. Reld, E. C. Richey, A. Rosella, L. A. Stahl, C. H. Stamps and W. W. Widney.

On behalf of the government it was shown that the defendant Allgern, who lived in a shanty in the Santa Monica Canon, made arrangements with other; defendants to receive the smuggled opium from a ship upon which they came down from British Columbia, while she was discharging, her cargo at the mammeth wharf, and hide it away in a trunk. Subsequently Aligern started to carry the trunk and its contents, which were valued at $770 to this city in a buggy, but was arrested en route. The duty, amounting to $420, not having been paid upon the opium, it was confiscated by the revenue officials, and as Aligern virtually admitted the whole scheme to the officer by whom he was arrested, the probabilities are that all three will be convicted in short order. The case was not concluded yesterday, and will be taken up again this morning.

The Tom Smith battery case was before Justice Austin yesterday but went over until Monday, owing to the fact that no decision has yet been rendered by the Superior Court.

It will be remembered that J. Marion Brooks, Esq., attoney for the defendant obtained a writ of mandate from Judge Van Dyke ordering Justice Austin to grant a change of venue or show cause to him in Department Four of the Superior Court. The District Attorney duly filed the answer and it is while awaiting the court's decision that the case has gone over.

he held to answer by Justice Austin for felony.

Smith has the appearance of a hardworking, honest old man. He is about 55 years old. His hair is alightly long, very gray, and rather guizzled as are his long mustache and straight-trimmed heard. The grayness lends a look of benevolence and gentleness to the supposed murderous bandit that makes the observer fear he is tasking to the wrong man, rather imagining a train-wrecker and highwayman would look like the old border bandits of carly days. goes on in court and I have no objection to that." He took on a far-away look and gazed at the motley crowd in the "tank" from which he was brought. "Fine place," remarked the reporter, and the grimace that appeared on Smith's face was one of intense disgust. When told of the rumor that he had attempted to escape when he heard Beecher was coming after him, he smilled derisively, but gave no direct answer. "Yes, I was arrested out in the Tejunga while I was at work there." In answer to further questions he said: "I have seen Johnson since I was arrested, but not Thompson, and I guess it doesn't make any difference to the people whether I had any conversation with Johnson or not.

"This is all the work of the detectives!" he finally, exclaimed, "there's lots in it for them. You know they don't care whether it's you or me—bad or innocent—so long as they get up a reputation and close on the money. But my lawyer told me not to make any statements to the papers." Then he relapsed into silence. Further casual conversation brought out many intimations of his innocence of the crime, but when the reporter left he was moodily staring into the shadows of the tank.

It was resported yesterday that two or more additional arrests were to be made inconnection with the train robbers, but up to a late hour last night no one had been brought in.

It is rumored, however, that this agreement provides that if Mr. Phillips should be successful in selling enough of the property to pay the $525,000 owing to the San Francisco Savings Union and enough money more to pay Mr. Gird the difference between that sum and the agreed price of the property, he will then be entitled to a deed for what land remains.

MORE RAIN.

A Heavy Downpour All Day-No

Damage Reported. There was another great rain yesterday It commenced between I and 2 o'clock in the morning, and got down to real bus-iness an hour or two later, continuing almost without intermission until last evening at 6 o'clock. The heaviest downevening at 6 o'clock. The heaviest downfall was during the afternoon, between 2 and 3 o'clock, when for a short time it came down in torrents, flooding the streets, and rendering the crossings practically impassable. This did not continue a great while, however, and consequently the inconvenience was not great. The treet car lines got through with but a few short stops, and there was but little interruption of travel.

The only damage on the railroad lines reported was a small washout on the Santa Barbara line, which delayed the train from that place several hours.

The rainfall for the twenty-four hours ending at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, by the government gauge, was 1.33 inches, bringing the total for the season up to 4.69 inches.

. IRRIGATION PROJECT.

The Chicago Record of recent date says:
"The Columbian Colonization Company was incorporated yesterday at Springfield by James W. Wilson of the Howard & by James W. Wilson of the Howard & Wilson Publishing Company, H. P. Sweet of Los Angeles and J. G. Foster, a London barrister. The company has a project to irrigate and to colonise a large traot of government land north of the San Bernardino Mountains in San Berhardino county, California. It is located on the Atlantic & Pacific and the Southern California Railroads and on branches of the Santa Fe system. The Mojave River rises in the San Bernardino and Sierra Madre Mountains and is lost in the desert to the north. At the upper narrows at Viotor on the Southern ('alifornia Railway, the river flows through's gorge 300 feet deep and 150 feet wide. By building a dam 150 feet high at this point the company propose to obtain a water supply sufficient to irrigate 340,000 acres of desert land. It is their intention to lay out a city to be called Columbia, with water-power for electric plants, a beet-sugar factory, canalgre works, a creamery and a cold-storage warehouse.

The company has a capital stock of $4,000,000. The land is to be taken up by the individual colonists under the desert land act, in tracts of forty acres or of some multiple of forty at 11.25 an acre.

"The Bear Valley system, just over the San Bernardino Mountains to the south, is at present the largest irrigation system in the world, but the new company hopes to surpass it."

THE MILLENNIUM.

Indications that it is Near at Hand.

Interesting Addresses Before the Premillennial Conference Yesterday.

Dr. Frost's Talk on "The Signs of the Times"—Interest in the Meetings Increasing—

The pre-unilennial conference continued its sessions at the First Baptist Church yesterday, and despite the heavy rain prevailing during most of the day, there was a good attendance, much interest being manifested in the proceedings.

Rev. Mr. Newell, pastor of the Bethany Pressbyterian Church this city was the Presbyterian Church, this city, was the first speaker. He gave a clear and concise resume of the history of the pre-milennial doctrine, affirming it to have been the general faith of orthodox Christianity, from the death of the apostles to the time of its origin. "It is a rehabilitation of heavenly truth," said the speaker, "since it came from its sepulchre, it is meeting successfully the hostility and opposition of ecclesiastical authority. It summons as its witnesses, in England and Amerse who stand in the forefront for learning and ability and piety. The mil-lennium whether regarded as the consum-mation, the final and perfect state of the history, or as the last of a series of divine tests by which man has been assured of God, is yet the terminus a quo of all differing views concerning the advent. Large portions of Christians look into an indefinite future, some period in the "latter days" when the various agen-cies at work shall be developed and en-ergized, when vast success shall atten-the preaching of the gospel, and a millen-the preaching of the gospel, and a millennium be ushered in as the outgrowth of all this.

"The plvotal question concerning this time of victory of truth over untruth, of righteousness over unrighteousness is.
How is this victory to be achieved? The view that it will be the result of present causes at work is extra-scriptural. As measured by years the biblical millennium is mentioned but once in the Bible,
i. e., in Revelations, twentieth chapter.
Its beginning is the casting of satan into his prison. Its duration is a thousand years. Co-terminous with the loosing of satan for a little season—it lies between two resurrections and it is ushered in by the personal appearing of our Lord and Savior. Now granted that the world is genverted by the present agencies at work, the result would not be the scriptural millennium. That requires an imprisoned satan and a personal intervention of the Redeemer. The millennium of the Apocalypse indeed comes, but the Lord of the millennium comes first."

Mr. Newell then at some length discussed the difference between the church abd kingdom. "The millennial earth," he said, "does not pertain to the church at all.
The Bible contains no passage that connects the millennium with the church. It is always connected with God's ancient people. The gospel is to be preached as a witness to the nations, and by it a people for the Lord shall be gathered out from among them. Why so, if the whole world were to be converted by the gospel according to the post-millennial theory?

"We are apt to confound the church's hope, which is that of being with Christ when He appears, with the hope of Israel which is earthly and embraces all the promises pertaining to the golden age of the earthly millennium.

"Meantime the work of the church, our work and labor for souls, is simple and evident. It is the work of the church, our work and habor for souls, is simple and evident. It is the work of the church or love and the patience of hope. We are in a pause before the Lord's return.

ng. njantin Douglas of Santa Barbara Benjamin Douglas of Santa Barbara was prevented from attending the conference by the sudden death of his wife Monday. Mr. Douglas is known as a profound Hebraist. His paper was read by Dr. Frost, and was received with great interest. The subject was "A King Shall. Reign in Righteousness." Isalah xxxii, 1. "The personal coming of this Xixii, 1. "The personal coming of this King," said the speaker, "will be the astonishing event of the world's future. When He comes He will find the world, not only not converted, but more hostile to Him and His kingdom than it was at His first coming, and He must therefore take violent possession of that which is His by right. For seven years preceding His return there will have been the "great tribulation" of which Daniel speaks. The contrary view that Christ will not come until after the millenium was not generally held until 200 years ago, nor is it eld until 200 years ago, nor is it in the early fathers, or ancient of christendom. Out of 8000 verses New Testament, between three and housand refer to the control of the control of the New Testament, between three and four thousand refer to His coming. The kingdom is not the church. The idea that the kingdom is the church dates from Constantine, who formed the first state church. The Lord Jesus was born King of the Jews, but has not yet reigned King of the Jews, but has not yet reigned King of the Jews, but has not yet reigned King of the Jews. The coming King is yet to be inaugurated, crowned and installed. The kingdom will not come until the King Himself reigns in righteousness on this earth."

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The afternoon session was conducted not come until the King Himself reigns in righteousness on this earth."

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The afternoon session was conducted by Dr. Read. A paper on "The Second Advent Personal" was read by Rev. W. F. Harper of Redlands. "The personal appearance is the ground of our hope," said Mr. Harper. "The reality and personality of Jesus has no doubters today. Not less real than the life, death and resurrection of Christ will be the second coming of Christ. The advent will be personal. Jesus has not changed into a mere influence, a mere myth, a mere abstraction. The incarnation was a necessity. Shall we see Him again? If so, how? Will I look on Him personally. Will I see Him as I see you in person? When He ascended, two men said: "This Jesus shall so come in like manner." If the ascent was personal, the coming will be personal. The early disciples looked for His personal coming. Calvin, Hodge, Albert Barnes, Hackett and David Brown all taught the personal coming of Christ. We destroy the power of the personality of Christ by jostling the coming out of its place. The language of the scripture is plain upon the coming. Christ will have universal dominion."

The next speaker was Rev. J. S. Mabie, D.D., of Escondido, Cal: His subject was "The Anti-Christ." "Divine revelation and human history are a unit," said the speaker. "God's order has been darkness before light, anti-Christ before Christ. what of this man anti-Christ? Evil has been permitted by Jehovah, so anti-Christ will be headed up all wickedness. There were four watches in the night so there are four dispensations of a thousand years each. A thousand years with God are as one, day. In the first day satan puHed down the woman and the woman the man. Adam to Enoch was the first day. Seven representative men went down in their first day; the second day was the destruction of the world by flood; the third, Abraham was raised up and a nation was raised up in a day and went out with Solomon. Pessimism before optimism in the history of the world. The third day with only second woman, the church, the Lamb's bride. Eve was corrupted during her espousal, so the bride of Christ will be corrupted while Christ is away on His throne. The true church is God's mystery; the devil's church is the mystery of iniquity. The Romish church is not the anti-Christ. The Romish church is the searlet woman; not the anti-Christ. He is masculine. Beware of women in governmental affairs. In church matters let her have her place. The man-of-sin will not be revealed until there be a departure of the church into the heavens. Satan will unveil the man-of-sin before God unveils the true man, Jesus Christ. The devil is a skillful imitator. He floods the market with spurious coin before the genuine comes in. He always gets in his implous work first. The names and titles of the anti-Christ are all found in scripture. The man-of-sin and the anti-Christ are not the same. They are two distinct personalities. The devil imitates Jesus in the man-of-sin, and Christ in the anti-Christ. The session closed by prayer by Mr. Rogerson, deacon of the Warren-street Baptist Church of Chicago.

EVENING SESSION.

As an introduction to the evening servents.

As an introduction to the evening serv-ice, Dr. Read read the first chapter of

A. C. Junkin, a Presbyterian minister of Santa Barbara, addressed the minister of santa barbara, addressed the audience on "Biblical Interpretation." "The Bible professes to come from God," he said. "If this be so, it must be the final arbiter of all opinion, and be infallible and above question. If it is God's word, we would expect it to be written in language that can be understood by those to wnom it is given. Must we look to some hidgen or mysterious source of guidance as to its would expect it to be written in language that can be understood by those to wnom it is given. Must we look to some hidgen or mysterious source of guidance as to its meaning, or must we believe it to mean literally what it says? We are told that the Jews spoke in tones peculiar to Jewsh customs, and must be understood according to the principles of their own way of thinking. We are not to depend upon the strained interpretations of pretended commentators, but to accept the plain teaching of the word in its literal simplicity. Some preachers, on funeral occasions, preach from the text. Be ye also ready, for ye know not in what hour the Son of Man cometh.' Indicating that death is the coming of Christ. It dod meant this why did He not say so? This is trifling with God's word. Several other texts were given, which are equally wrested from their true and literal meaning, to the confusion of the hearers. The coming of Christ described in Matthew xxix, 28-29, is sometimes absurdly attributed to Titus the head of the Roman army, invading is sometimes absurdly at the head of the Ro is sometimes absurdly attributed to Titus at the head of the Roman army, invading Judea and destroying Jerusalem.

"Zion means Zion. Jerusalem means Jerusalem. Israel means Israel; and these names never mean the church. If the destruction of Jerusalem meant the coming of Christ, why not all the other disasters that have befallen and are befalling man-of Christ, why not all the other disasters that have befallen and are befalling mankind?

"All forms and sects of Christianity recognize the literal and grammatical method of interpretation of thought and teaching in all subjects except in reference to the prophecies of the future. Why not in regard to these also. We interpret nature and literature according to common sense and direct methods. The same method should apply to our interpretation of God's word. One-third of the Bible consists of prophetic teaching. Its literal fulfilment in the past is proof that we should expect its literal fulfilment in future. Because of the wilful hardening of the heart, God has permitted a blinding of the eyes for the time being.

"Secondly. All the prophecies concerning the first coming of Christ were literally fulfilled. Such as related, for instance to the manner of His birth, His names, His life, His death, etc. Why not an equally literal fulfillment of such as relate to His second coming? Such as given in Matthew, in Daniel, in Isaiah, in Revelation, etc. No prophecy is of private interpretation, but the scriptures are self-interpreting. It is urged that it is derogatory to this glory. Peter thought it beneath Him to suffer and die; but Jesus answered, 'Get thee behind me, satan.'

"It is said that it would require many changes in the physical as well as the normal world to bring about the prophesied conditions if taken literally. God can produce all the changes necessary. If his could deal marvelously with a single nation in delivering them from Egypt, and surrounding them with glory, He can cover the whole earth with glory, It is said that much of the Bible is unquestionably figurative, and therefore all may be regarded as figurative, especially as all figurative expressions indicate their own figurative nature.

"In the interpretation of scripture one must distinguish between the old dispen-figurative expressions indicate their own figurative nature.

"In the interpretation of scripture one must distinguish between the old dispensation and the new. The Old Testament is the book of the kingdom, the New Testament the book of the church. The kingdom pertains to the earth. It had a literal existence in the days of Israel. It will again have a literal existence; with Israel restored its central nation, and Jesus its King. The true church is invisible and heavenly. The laws of the kingdom were in many respects just the reverse of the laws of the church.

"A clear and concise distinction is necessary to any correct understanding of God's word."

sary to any correct understanding of God's word."

The speaker's address was logical and convincing, and his honest and emphatic manner added force to his words.

After the rendition of a solo by Mr. Ledford, Dr. A. J. Frost proceeded to deliver his first address on "The Signs of the Times," be having received notice of the sudden death of a member of his church, whose funeral would require his return home on Friday.

"The Jews of old did not understand the signs of the times in which they lived."

church, whose funeral would require his return home on Friday.

"The Jews of old did not understand the signs of the times in which they lived," said the speaker. "They even failed to comprehend the signs of the coming of their King after He had come. We are living in an age when the signs of the coming of a great event are multiplying."

Dr. Frost quoted many of the most eminent authorities to the effect that the coming of the Messlah is near at hand, as every sign indicates. Long lists of eminent divines of many churches and many names prominent in history and politics and science, American, English and German, French, Swiss, etc., were given, all of whom agree that the end of all things human is near at hand.

"The vast majority of the Bible scholars of the world today believes in the imminent coming of Christ. What are the modern signs of the times? First, missionary signs. "This gospel shall be preached in all nations as a witness; then shall the end come.' Today the gospel is preached to every nation on earth. How fully it must be preached to each nation to make it a sufficient witness, God alone must judge."

The speaker gave a glowing and eloquent account of the changes that have been wrought in the religious conditions of the nations during the last century through missionary labors. His description of the coming of the new kingdom was a model of oratory.

"Second, religious signs. The world is not to be Christianized, but it is to be evangelized. We must not confound Christianity with evangelizing. The mission of the gospel to evangelize the world is being rapidly accomplished."

The speaker's array of facts, showing that Christianity in its true sense is not keeping pace with the growth of wickedness, was simply appalling.

Dr. Frost will deliver his other address on "The Signs of the Times" this evening.

HEAD OF THE SALVATION ARMY. HEAD OF THE SALVATION ARMY.

Gen. Booth is undoubtedly one of the greatest characters of modern times, and the great Salvation Army, with its branches in every quarter of the globe is a living monument to his marvelous executive ability and genius as an organizer.

At Nottingham, England, in 1829, William Booth was born. He began life with no advantages of birth, wealth or education, as a lay exhorter. From a very early age his tendencies were religious. At 13 he left the Church of England, in which his parents had reared him, for what were to him the more interesting services of the Methodists. Two years later he became converted. America seems to have been responsible for a great deal of the general's early inspiration, for it was, according to Booth's own telling, at the evangelistic meetings of the Rev. James Caughey, a minister from the United States, that he received the most potent influences which largely determined his later career. As early as his seventeenth year Booth was an accredited lay preacher with a reputation for evangelical work. Two years later he would have yielded to the persuasions of his superintendent minister and entered the migistry but for feeble health. For about eighteen months he was wholly engaged in preaching in London and in the suburbs. Then a violent controversy arose in the. Wesleyan Society, and as a result of this Booth became a minister of the Methodist New Connection. He was 24 years of age at this time, and after he had been regularly stationed in London he married a Miss Munford, the daughter of a clergyman. About five years ago Mrs. Booth died. On the occasion of her funeral there were 40,000 men and women in line following the hearse. It is said that none of the royal pageants in London ever drew such a crowd in the streets as did the obsequies of the wife of Gen. Booth.

MR. THACHER A WITNESS.

He Fully Verifies a Disputed World's Fair Award.

Fair Award.

John Boyd Thacher is laconic and decisive in his statements. During the lively campaign just closed in New York, this marked him especially as chairman of the Democratic State Committee. It was equally true of him as chairman of the Executive Committee on Awards at the World's Fair. This is the positive and sententious way in which he verifies in an official letter, the honors won by Dr. Price's Baking Powder: "I herewith enclose you an official copy of your award, which in due time will be inserfibed in the diploma and forwarded." Thus the question respecting the award, raised by an envious New York-rival, is settled beyond cavil. This same rival, by the way, is widely advertising an award for itself. The official records prove this claim wholly faise as they show the New York pretender was not so much as an exhibitor at the World's Fair.

FOUR UNCERTAIN ROUTES OF THE ELECTRIC ROAD.

New Savings Bank to be Opened The Southern Pacific at South Pasadena-Briefs and Persoanls.

PASADENA, Dec. 19 .- (Special Corre PASADENA. Dec. 19.—(Special Correspondence.) The Pasadena and Los Angeles Electric Railway Company, having plenty of time on its hands, is inclined to get the kind of a right-of-way it wants through South Pasadena or build on a route which will side-track that place. As stated in this column, the company is not satisfied with the right-of-way tendered in lied of the one on Arroyo drive. Chief Enginer Larrabee has asked the Council of South Pasadena for a right-of-way over four different routes through the way over four different routes through the town, not all to be used of course, but to give the company a choice.

J. A. Muir of the Southern Pacific has asked the South Pasadena City Council asked the South Pasadena City Council for a steam railroad franchise over the route built upon by the San Gabriel Rapid Transit Railroad, which is now owned by the Southern Pacific. The narrow-gauge road, so long unused, is barely more than a streak of rust, and South Pasadena will be glad enough to see the old roadway utilized as a branch of the Southern Pacific into Pasadena.

HOW THE WATER COMES DOWN.

The heavy rain today—amounting to nearly three inches, according to some gauges—put a severe test on storm drains, gutters and culverts, some of which came up to expectations and others fell short. The iron-covered culverts on Colorado street; at the intersection of both Fair Oaks and Raymond avenues, were the most notable failures, they easily stopping up with sand and causing the water to overflow in every direction. A torrent rushed down the Santa Fe tracks, at the Colorado-street crossing, and at several other points the water was too deep to be forded by any pedestrians not in high rubber boots. A few washouts in new street work were seen in various portions of the city, but none of any narticular consequence. The culverts alluded to were the subject of much criticism, while the water was washing across Colorado street, and the general opinion seemed to be that the iron covers ought to be taken away and in their place some gently-sloping valleys be made to cross the street, large enough to convey the current coming down Fair Oaks and Raymond. Such a plan was suggested at the time the covered culverts were decided upon, but opposed because the gutters crossing the street, large enough to convey the current coming down Fair Oaks and Raymond. Such a plan was suggested at the time the covered culverts were decided upon, but opposed because the gutters crossing the street would be obstacles to fast driving. In view of the usually crowded condition of the principal business thoroughtare of Pasadena, and the too frequent exhibitions of horse-speed to be seen thereon, such an objection should be the strongest argument in favor of open gutters, such as may be seen at the crossing of Raymond avenue and Kansas street, for instance. A point that is to be urgad will be toward divarting some of the storm water before it comes from that section and convey it to the arrow or some other safe outlet. It is not fair to expect the gutters HOW THE WATER COMES DOWN.

THE REVIVAL.

Mr. Yatman's sermon last night was delivered to a large audience, the lower floor of the tabernacie being well filled. The Independent Order of Good Templars attended the meeting in a body, they having adjourned their regular meeting for that purpose. Miss Bollinger's solo was in harmony with the subject of the evening, and was beautifully rendered. "A Great Man, or Daniel, the Man of Character," was Mr. Yatman's subject. He closely outlined the character of Daniel, his trials and the conspiracies of his enemies. He told of his victories, his wisdom, and of his growth in the king's favor. Daniel had a purpose, and we, if we would succeed, in doing God's work, must centralize our energies just as we do in a successful business life. Daniel had a conscience that kept him from wrong when away from home as well as at home. Daniel also had prayer, always doing the best he could and trusting God. Influence was another element of which Daniel made the best use. His influence certainly helped the three Hebrew children © be firm.

Mr. Yutman showed how many lack these necessary traits of Christian character now, and made very forcible applithe three Hebrew children to be firm.

A little excitement was caused in Hutchinson's store at noon today by a small fire which occurred in his show window. A bit of ignited match flew from the hand of a smoker to the gauzy, cottony decoration in the window and started a brisk blaze amongst the pretty but fragile things from lacy bon-bon boxes to brown-paper pigs rooting in the battling snow, seriously damaging an assortment of the stock. The blaze burned itseir out without breaking the glass.

ELOPED WITH A HOBO.

There comes floating over from Anaheim a story of a heretofore respectably-considered married woman eloping with a bona fide representative of the fraternity of "hobos." As the story goes, the heartless woman affectionately kissed her husband good-by on the morning ahe left, as, he started for hfs day's work, and then a few hours later packed her "grip," and, after taking what money she could find in the house, (about $180.) decamped with her walking delegate of a paramour, leaving not only her husband, but her little twelve-year-old daughter, whom she refused-to give even a parting kiss.

The Anaheim Independent has the following to say concerning the disgraceful affair: "Last evening the wife of P. C.
Miller, one of the workmen engaged on the cementing of water ditches, left her husband and one little girl aged 12 years, and skipped for San Diego with a tramp named Joe McCarthy. Mr. Miller stated to our reporter this morning that he had lived happily with his wife and did not understand why she should go away with so worthless a man. He said the fellow had not intelligence enough to warrant shooting him. Miller states the woman took all the cash she could get hold of, amounting in all to $180. She also had a diamond ring worth $200 and a gold watch.
She also took a gold watch belonging to her little girl. She kissed her husband affectionately when he left her to go to work in the morning, but when she took her departure for San Diego, she did not even give her little girl a parting kiss.
Miller says he is from Georgia where they shoot men for such offenses, but they never shoot tramps down there, so he will not follow the pair, but will straightaway get a divorce and count himself lucky to get rid of so fathless a woman."

Later, a warrant was sworn out charging McCarty with thert in the sum of $180, and Constable Great proceeded to San Diego where the faithless pair had begun to enjoy themselves in accordance wit

Diego where the faithless pair had begun to enjoy themselves in accordance with their standing in the lower strata. They were brought back to Anaheim, and today (Wednesday) the festive "hobo" who answers to the name of "Mr. McCarty," was given a preliminary examination before Justice of the Peace J. B. Pierce. He will appear before the Superior Court, no doubt, to answer to the charges preferred against him.

AN IMPORTANT LAWSUIT.

The time of the Superior Court was taken up today in the hearing of evidence in the case of the City of Santa Ana vs. the Santa Ana School District et al., to condemn property belonging to the school district and others for the opening up of Sycamore street to and through the public school property. Evidence was introduced on the part of the plaintiff, both verbal and documentary, after which the court thought it necessary for the jury to view the premises in question, and they were accordingly conducted through the rain and slush to the premises by Deputy Sheriff Tedford, accompanied by the City Attorney, to show them the boundaries of the property in question.

Evidence was then introduced by the defendants, and the same was pending at the time this report closed.

REPEAL OF THE SUNDAY-CLOS-ING ORDINANCE

It is Requested by the Mercantile Association—The Issue in the Next Campaign—Swind-lers Arrested.

SAN BERNARDINO, Dec. 19.—(Special Correspondence.) C. H. Phillips of San Luis Obispo, the reputed purchaser of the Chino ranch, was in the city for a few hours this morning. He was on his return to Chino from Temecula by way of Los Angeles. He is handling the Temecula Pauba and Santa Rosa renches in Riverside county, embracing about 100,000 scres, for the San Francisco Savings Union. He says that it is his purpose to make every for the San Francisco Savings Union. He says that it is his purpose to make every possible acre productive during the period of the sale of the lands to actual settlers. He expects that the sale of lands will cover a period of ten rears, as it is not his purpose to bear the real estate market in Southern California. Mr. Gird has reserved the pasture lands for one year, after that they will be devoted to dairy purposes on an extensive scale.

SUNDAY CLOSING.

SUNDAY CLOSING.

At the meeting of the City Council last night, the Mercantile Association, through its committee, presented the following request for the repeal of the Sunday closing ordivance:

"To the Honorable Board of Trustees of the City of San Bernardino—Gentlemen: At a meeting of the Mercantile Protective Association of this city, held Monday evening, December 16, the undersigned were appointed a committee to appear before your honorable board, and respectfully petition for the repeal of ordinance No. 157.

"Your honorable board hardly needs to-petition for the repeal of ordinance No. 187.

"Your honorable board hardly needs to be informed that the Mercantile Association is numerously constituted, and embraces in its membership a large proportion of the leading and most influential business men and property-holders of this city. In its membership are many who petitioned for the passage of the ordinance but who have become convinced by experience and observation that its operation has failed to accomplish any benefits, but has worked injuries; wherefore, they now join in this petition for repeal.

"Your petitioners are reliably assured that very many property-holders and other citizens, who are eligible to membership in their association are agreed with them in favor of the repeal of the ordinance. They are also confident that the opposition to repeal is, in a large measure, due to a misapprehension of facts and a raise notion of the motives of your petitioners, who have no motive but to subserve the best interests of the city and of all its people.

"Your petitioners have occupied a posi-

"Your petitioners have occupied a position peculiarly favorable to the acquirement of accurate knowledge as to the effects of this ordinance upon the public welfare. They know that business generally has been crippled, that many central places of business and residence properties have been vacated, that rents have been reduced to a ruinous extent, and that many residents of the surrounding country, who would fain have visited this city and made it their place of weekly rest and recreation, many of them to participate in its religious services, have been driven to other places.

penents to compensate for these many injuries, nor any benefits, and your petitioners assure your honorable body that if their petition for repeal shall be granted they will feel under special and great obligation to use more than ordinary infituence to see that no harm shall result, nor any impairment of the good order of the city.

"Your petitioners particularly desire an early repeal of this ordinance, that contention in regard to it may not be a distracting element in the approaching municipal election, diverting the attention of electors from other considerations as to the worth and fitness of candidates, and the value of their experjence in the conduct of public affairs.

"Suffering as they have been from the effects of the ordinance, your petitioners humbly beg that you will at least give a trial to test the effects of repeal, and your petitioners will ever pray.

Trustee Barton, who is supposed from his past record to be opposed to the repeal of the ordinance, was absent, having been summoned to Los Angeles as a witness in the United States Court, and a motion to consider the subject in his absence was lost by a tie vote. It is thought that the present Council stands, for the Sunday ordinance as it now stands: Trustees Barton, Ham and Whitney; for repeal, Lawson and Parker. At the coming spring election the successors of Parker (in favor of repeal) and Whitney (in favor of Sunday closing) are to be chosen. The fight will be in Whitney's ward, and as the churches are taking a hand the campaign promises to be a lively one, and the outcome doubtful, with chances at present in favor of Sunday closing.

A curious French timeplece is in the form of a sunflower of silver, which protrudes from a white crystal vase, gracerul in shape and soberly decorated. The stalk is of brown silk and leaves green, the petgis yellow and the heart of the flower deeply oxidized. Hour and minute marks are engraved around the heart of the flower, which faces the looker-on. A lady-bird of spotted red enameled gold apparently rests on the flower, on the line dividing the heart from the petals. This pretty insect, which moves imperceptibly by means of mechanism hidden within the flower, shows the time. By only a close inspection can one detect the time divisions on the original dial, which is granulated all over and is bluish-black. As to the hollow circular line on which the lady-bird travele it is completely invisible.

Rails that Won't Fly Up-Water Supply Filtration-Utilization of mpressed Air—Wood is Going Out of Use.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8 .- (Special Correspondence.) Among the disagreeable ex-periences of early railway travel was the occasional entrance of a rail through the occasional entrance of a fail introduction floor of a car. The weight of the rails has steadily increased, and the methods or holding them down have improved, but on a good many roads fifty-six pounds have been deemed heavy enough. The Pennsylvania Company has decided to increase the weight of its steel rails on rain lines from eighty-five to 100 pounds. nain lines from eighty-five to 100 pounds, and the change goes into effect early next year between Jersey City and Pittsburgh. The ordinary length of a rail is now thirty The ordinary length of a rail is now thirty feet. The new ones will average ninety feet, thus lessening the frequency of joints and enhancing the smoothness of travel. As high as 200 pounds have been tried, but the present limit is thought to be equal to the weight and speed of the existing engines and cars. Street railways are running steam railways hard in this matter of heavy steel rails, and a ninety-pound rail is quite a common thing on American streets, with fishplates that are secured by as many as ten or twelve bolts. The greater weight has not only been due to the heavier burden of cars mechanically propelled, but to the depth that is necessary for a rail against which paving blocks are to lie. More than one plan has been attempted of giving such heavy street-car rails a removable top, which could be changed when worn out, but the problem may still be regarded as an unsolved and inviting one.

OPENINGS FOR INDIAN CORN.

It is a curious and interesting fact that Americans are the only branch of the Americans are the only branch of the great Anglo-Saxon-German family that has learned to eat Indian corn and to relish it as an article of diet. It is grown very largely in Australia, but is fed to horses. cattle and poultry, its use as human diet being as little familiar as is that of cats and dogs here. When Enlish people arrive in this country and make their first ac-quaintance with a field of corn, they do not know what it is, and when they sit not know what it is, and when they sit down to eat a cooked ear their embarrassment is often ludicrous. But they soon learn to like the vegetable and then wonder why it is not in greater use in England and other parts of Europe, in other forms than that of Maizena flour. At a time when Russia has had to feed its famine districts on wild oats and grasses, and when Germany has been experimenting elaborately with sawdust bread, the opportunity for an extension of American export trade in corn has certainly arrived.

The beautiful pine trees of the California Sierras have more than a local fame, and a brisk demand exists for their cones, from botanists in all parts of the world. The cones are furnished at the rate of $2 a pound for the seed, and are gathered from the trees expressiy. The collectors, in climbing the trees have great difficulty in keeping off the squarrels that hasten to pick the seeds out of a cone as soon as it is dronned. Another new minor industry of California is the utilization of a dock weed called canaigre, which yields a large amount of tannie acid, the merits of which are highly rated. A third novel industry is that established by a Billings, Mont. man, in the collection and sale of elk teeth, whose value ranges now from 50 cents up to more than four times as much. The collector is said to have $6,000 teeth in safe deposit, and thus controls the market.

WATER SUPPLY FILTRATION. .The beautiful pine trees of the California

WATER SUPPLY FILTRATION. Dr. J. S. Billings, the well-known sani-tary expert of Washington, said recently tary expert of Washington, said recently that no large city in this country has at the present time a thoroughly-safe and entirely satisfactory water supply. Probably Philadelphia is the worst off, while Baltimore and New York are among the best. Of the water supply of the national capital he spoke in discouraging terms, suggesting an expenditure of $5,000,000 to enlarge and purify it. Dr. Billings states that the old methods of sand filtration for large water supplies, although obsolete and in disrepute as being unreliable against pathogenic, or disease germs, are coming rapidly into favor again as the result of very careful and prolonged tests made at Lawrence, Mass, at Hamburg, in Germany, and elsewhere. The rate at which the Very careful and prolonged tests made at Lawrence, Mass, at Hamburg, in Germany, and elsewhere. The rate at which the water is filtered has an important bearing on the subject. When a filter is cleaned and new sand placed on top, it is four or five days before the water going through it is sufficiently free from micro-organisms to be safe; and such water should be wasted rather than consumed by the public. Engineers are now seeking a method of filtration that will be more rapid and continuous while giving a pure water. The latest thing is that being tried in the old German town of Worms, where the water is forced under pressure through the walls of large cylinders made of a kind of artificial stone resembling that in a Pasteur filter. At Antwerp, the impurewater is also passed through revolving cylinders that contain fragments of iron, which will, of course, kill many of the micro-organisms.

WOOD GOING OUT OF USE. WOOD GOING OUT OF USE.

WOOD GOING OUT OF USE.

The enormous increase in the capacity of iron and steel works has its justification and warrant in the wide variety of new employments found for those metals as substitutes for wood. The German Iron-trade Association has lately taken the pains to point out, at great expense, for the benefit of all concerned, the many advantages to be gained by the resort to steel, and it would seem that there is barely a single use left for wood in constructive detail, and not much in ornamental finish, except genuine carving. The modern edifice is nearest perfection in point of durability and safety, according to the proportion in which metal has excluded wood. It is now proposed that wood shall be dispensed with entirely in the framework of railway rolling-stock, and this means something, when we remember that there are about two million five hundred thousand railway vehicles, exclusive of locomotives. In mines, metal is doing away with wood, and the use of iron pit props in France has shown that they need to be renewed only half as often as those of wood. At the same time, metal has its own special risks, and it is suggested, for example, that unless carefully insulated, a large building full of steel and iron, might be as susceptible to electrolytic action by stray currents eating, it up, as though it were rail, forming part of an electric-railway circuit, or gas or water pipes adjacent thereto. It this new danger exist, its remedy should be readily discovered.

COMPOUND ENGINES IN MILL WORK.

The tendency in the change from single to compound engines in manufacturing establishments has become very marked, but it is not yet quite clear whether two-cylinder engines or the three will preponderate. Many cotton mills have put in triple expansion engines, but in the majority of new installations the two-cylinder trype has been chosen. Probably the reason is to some extent that of lower first cost, but the results recently shown by a mill at North Grosvenordale, Ct., indicate that there are other explanations. The new compound engine referred to has given, on repeated tests, a consumption of only 12.45 pounds of dry steam per horse-power hour at its best, and 12.72 at its worst. The engine takes steam from horizontal tubular boilers at 150 pounds pressure, and runs at sixty revolutions per minute. The main peculiarity of the design lies in the large ratio of voulme between the cylinders. The high-pressure cylinder is 18 inches in diameter; the low is 44 5-16, both having a stroke of 6 feet. Usually an 18-inch high cyclinder would have but a 32-inch low, but in this instance the difference gives a ratio of volume between them of 6.4 to 1, with a ratio of expansion of about 22. The theory of the designers is that if a compound engine be made with a low-pressure cylinder of a triple engine, as good economy can be obtained.

COTTON BLANKETS.

It is stated that cotton blankets are being extensively introduced into England COMPOUND ENGINES IN MILL WORK.

It is stated that cotton blankets are being extensively introduced into England ing extensively introduced into England from the continent. They do not cost more than a third as much as woolen blankets; indeed, good looking ones can be sold at about $3.75 a dozen. The degree of warmin insured by these coverings is not mentioned, but there has been a rush for them on the part of a poorer class of householders, such as has never before been experienced. It is an old practice in Enland among those who are short of woolen blankets to intermingle sheets of newspaper with the coverlets, the rosult being, it is alleged, to retain a remarkable smount of warmth that would otherwise escape.

UTILIZATION OF COMPRESSED AIR.

UTILIZATION OF COMPRESSED AIR. At an engine works at Massillon, O., compressed air has been used for power transmission for six or seven years. By its means there are now twenty-six five-ton cranes, one cupola stock elevator and a large number of small hoists, varying from four hundred to one thousand pounds in capacity. Shears and punches in the boiler shop to one thousand pounds in capacity. Shears and punches in the boiler shop are operated by compressed air. One form of shear is applied to the cutting off of stay boils in locomotive boilers. With compressed air, two boys can cut off seven hundred or eight hundred stay boilts per day in ten hours, which is far in excess of what could be accomplished by hammer and chisel. In the foundry, the air is even more useful, as its elastic action makes it very convenient in drawing patterns, closing flasks, etc. The air is stored in three reservoirs, conveniently situated, each of 250 cubic feet capacity, and the cost is put at something like $3 per day of ten hours. Two of the reservoirs are 1000 feet apart. The piping aggregates about twenty-five hundred feet. This and other instances show that compressed air is cheaper than steam for various purposes of distribution, and should be used in many places where its merits have hitherto been overlooked.

THE VALUE OF CANALS. While in the United States, the canal system upon which at one time so much of the growth and prosperity of the country depended, has been allowed to fall try depended, has been allowed to fall into disrepair and oblivion, in France the canals have been maintained in a high state of efficiency. Their usefulness has grown in a corresponding degree, especially since 1879. During the period that has elapsed since that year, the tonnage hauled on canals has increased 67 per cent, while that by rail has risen only 16 per cent. There are 15,925 canal-boats, 846 of which are worked by their cowners. cent. There are 15,925 canal-boats, 8460 of which are worked by their ewners. France has 7747 miles of carals and livers France has 7747 miles of canals and livers open to canal-boat navigation. Or some of the canals, cable haulage has been successfully tried, while on at least two, electricity is now being employed advantageously. Such results are likely to give a stimulus to the revival of canal work in this country, and the Canal Union of New York, which advocates the deepening of the State canals to nine feet, estimates the cost of that work at $18,000,000. Toward this a small application has already been made. Careful experiments show that every additional foot of water in a canal means about 15 per cent. less resistance in the propulsion of the beat.

"Rivers," said Banks, "turn around and let me see how it fits you. . . Yes, it's a pretty fair sort of overcoat. I hope its paid for."
"Banks," responded Rivers, with dignity, "the difference between you and my tailor is that he hopes it will be paid for."
